VILLA FLEES BEFORE PURSUERS

ROBBERY GIVEN AS MOTIVE

Middlesex Jury Finds Son of Rich Tewksbury Florist "Probably Guilty" of Killing Father

Albert J. Roper of Tewksbury was today indicted for the murder of his father, Albert Roper of Tewksbury, wealthy florist, in the latter's greenhouse at Tewksbury March 1.

The indictment gives robbery as the motive.

The indictment was returned by the Middlesex County Grand Jury before Judge Hamilton in Cambridge. It contained two counts.

The first, in the ordinary legal phraseology, charges murder in the first degree. The second reads as follows:

"That Albert J. Roper, on March 1, at Tewksbury, being armed with a dangerous weapon, did assault and rob Albert Roper, and did take from the person of said Albert Roper the money and property of Albert Roper, and did murder Albert Roper in the commission of the said robbery."

Albert J. Roper has claimed that he spent the night of the murder in Boston, at the home of Mrs. Jessie Fox, No. 16 Walt street, Roxbury.

The body of Albert Roper was discovered at 10 o'clock at night, in the greenhouses, by his second son, Arthur. The head was beaten in and a piece of lead pipe lay near the body. The man had been struck down from behind, while making his final rounds for the night through the greenhouses. The pocket in which he was accustomed to keep his money was empty. He was known to have had a considerable sum.

Young Roper's alibi was presented to the Grand Jury, which sat in Lowell while conducting its investigation.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

SCATTERED all over the face of creation
From the mountain's green top to the ocean's green spray
The sons of a mighty and militant nation
Are wearing the beautiful shamrock today.
Taming the wilderness, ploughing the ocean,
Going wherever stern duty shall call,
Toiling for Freedom with dauntless devotion—
Strong and courageous—and fighting men all.

GRADYS and Gallaghers, Gibbons and Gilligans,
Donahues, Driscolls and Duffys and Doyles,
McCarthys, McCloskeys, Mulcaheys and Milligans,
Barrys and Bradys and Buckleys and Boyles;
Flyans and Fitzgeralds and Finleys and Flanagans,
Qualeys and Quinlans and Quigleys and Quins,
Lantrys and Logans and Lynches and Lanigans,
Morrisys, Murphys, McGuirks and McGinns.

BUT whether they sit by the murmuring Shannon
Or wander afar to the ends of the earth,
Or facing the flames from the thundering cannon,
They nobly give proof of their courage and worth.
In every brave breast there still burn the old fires,
And when the year pauses at March Seventeen
Their thoughts wander back to the land of their sires—
And all men of Erin are wearing the green.

44 German Ships Seized by Brazil

London, March 17.—Forty-four German ships of from 12,000 to 20,000 tons in size, have been seized by the Brazilian government, according to a dispatch from Liverpool today.

The German vessels were merchantmen, which had been interned in Brazilian ports at the outbreak of the war.

Fourteen of the seized ships were in port at Rio De Janeiro and twelve others, including the Bluecher, were interned at Pernambuco.

It was the seizure of German ships by Portugal that led Germany to declare war against that country.

ONLY ONE MEMBER DISSENTS

Representative Held Guilty of Unbecoming Conduct; Report of Committee Is Sustained

Representative Harry C. Foster of Gloucester was expelled from the State Legislature today. His expulsion was the automatic result of a voice vote of the House accepting, with one dissenter, a report of the Committee on Rules recommending such expulsion, after the committee had decided he was guilty of conduct unbecoming a member of the Great and General Court in collecting money from persons interested in pending legislation.

There were about 175 members present in the House, out of the total membership of 240, when Speaker Channing H. Cox put the question of accepting the Rules Committee's report. There was a general "Aye."

The only "No" came from Representative John L. Donovan of Boston, he was the only one of the eleven members of the Rules Committee which did not sign the expulsion report. He said he thought censure of Foster would be enough and that expulsion would be too drastic.

FOSTER NOT PRESENT.

Foster was not present when the vote was taken. He has not occupied his seat as Representative from the Twenty-first Essex District since the hearing on the charges against him began before the Rules committee.

When Speaker Cox announced that the acceptance of the committee report compelled him to pronounce Foster no longer a member, there was a moment of silence, until the Speaker went on with the next business of the day.

A few minutes before the expulsion vote Weston U. Friend had been ordered out of the House lounging room by Doorkeeper James Beatty. He was counsel at the Foster hearing for Representative James M. Lyle, who brought the charges.

It was well known through the House that acceptance of the Rules Committee report, recommending the casting out of the North Shore Representative, would automatically terminate Foster's membership.

CHORUS OF AYES.

The report of the committee came up in the House orders of the day. Speaker Cox said:

"The question is on the acceptance of the report of the committee. Those in favor will say 'Aye.'"

There was a heavy chorus of "Ayes."

The Speaker: "Those opposed will say 'No.'"

There was a resolute "No" from Representative Donovan of Boston.

The Speaker: "The ayes have it and the report is accepted."

Speaker Cox added: "The Speaker is obliged to announce that, by the acceptance of this report, the House has expelled Harry C. Foster, representative from the Twenty-first Essex Representative District, from its membership. Beginning at this time Mr. Foster is no longer a member of this body."

Anita Turnbull, Boston Girl Who Beat Husband, Free After Baron's Plea

Beatrice Anita Baldwin Turnbull de Patterson, reported in straitened circumstances after quarrel with husband.

By International News Service.

New York, March 17.—Mrs. Beatrice Anita Baldwin Turnbull de Patterson was arrested here for attacking her husband, the Baron Andrew Vincent de Patterson, in the New York Athletic Club, last Friday.

Mrs. de Patterson is the good-looking young woman who, claiming to be the daughter of the late Elias J. ("Lucky") Baldwin, unsuccessfully sued for $5,500,000 of that celebrated sportsman's $11,000,000 estate.

The baron and the then Miss Baldwin Turnbull were married in June, 1915, in Roxbury, Mass.

The baron, while in Magistrate Levy's court, demanded that his wife be restrained from calling at his club and creating scenes. That he wanted it publicly done, restraining her from further physical onslaughts upon him, went without saying.

ASKS LENIENCY.

Several times, the baron told the magistrate, his wife had belabored him. He said that he would not care to see his wife sent to prison or anything like that. But he made it plain that he was tired dodging his wife's blows, and more tired of the blows he didn't dodge.

Last Friday, he explained, Mrs. de Patterson met him at the doors of the club. The doorman and a few attendants were at the top of the steps. Naturally they were interested.

"She had a fear," declared the baron, "that I had no intention of returning to her. And she was quite right. I have no desire to return. I made it plain to her. Then she struck me. The club employes were looking on. However, while I do not feel any too kindly toward her, I hope you will not be too severe. She was a bit overwrought, you know."

"DIDN'T HIT HIM HARD."

The baron went on to tell Magistrate Levy that his wife had done several things to discourage him. Once, he said, she relieved him of a watch given him by a French steamship company. The watch, he explained, was bestowed upon him for saving the steamer Vinderpine and her crew, its six passengers from destruction by fire.

While the baron was reciting his woes, his wife sat in the very uncomfortable chair assigned to prisoners. The lower half of her face was hidden behind an ermine stole. But there was plenty of physical evidence that she has lost none of her beauty.

It was plain she was not enjoying the scene any more than her husband was. She explained to Magistrate Levy that she was very, very sorry.

"Really," she said, "I didn't mean to strike him. And it wasn't a very hard blow."

"Well, what's this all about?" demanded the magistrate.

"Simply that my husband don't want me—that's all," replied Mrs. de Patterson.

"There's something more serious behind this—something you haven't told me about," decided the magistrate. "I warn you, madam, not to annoy or disturb your husband again. Your good looks will not avail you next time. Next time I shall do something drastic."

With that, the magistrate suspended sentence and freed Mrs. de Patterson. She left, promising to cease her assaults upon the baron.

BANDIT TRAILED TO CASAS GRANDES

Washington, March 17.—Official reports to the State Department from Mexico today said that Villa and his band had passed around Casas Grandes and proceeded south. Acting Secretary Polk refused to say from where the reports came, stating only that they were made by American consular officials.

These reports were believed to mean that the Mormon colony at Casas Grandes is safe.

Carranza Reports He Has Located Villa

Queretaro, Mexico, March 16 (via Laredo, Texas, March 17).—Official announcement was made here today that the Carranza troops seeking Francisco Villa had located the rebel leader near Casas Grandes and that the Constitutionalist troops had been ordered to co-operate with the American forces in effecting Villa's capture.

With Carranzistas and Americans in full co-operation, it is believed by First Chief Carranza that the rebel leader will soon be captured or killed. Owing to this belief, the campaign against Emiliano Zapata in the south will be pressed.

Success in the two campaigns might restore peace to Mexico, Villa and Zapata being the only important leaders who have refused to accept the Carranza government.

FEAR BANDIT VILLA WILL GAIN MANY NEW RECRUITS

By L. V. B. RUCKER,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

San Antonio, Tex., March 17.—If Brigadier-General Pershing's flying columns in Mexico had to deal only with Villa and his original force with which he terrorized the border, his capture or extermination would be a comparatively easy matter, according to military men at Fort Sam Houston.

But Major-General Funston was apprehensive today that Villa, becoming a hero among the Mexicans of the lower class because of his murderous raid on Columbus, N. M., might be joined by recruits from all over Mexico.

It was even deemed possible that Carranista troops, already fickle in the face of unsettled conditions, such as now prevail south of the Rio Grande, might desert the First Chief and go over to Villa.

Soldiers fighting under the Eagle and the Snake have switched from Diaz to Madero; from Madero to Huerta; from Huerta to Carranza, and it would surprise no army man to see some of them flock to Villa's standard, since the briganf has had the withal daring to invade the territory of the "Gringo" to kill and burn.

Headquarters was without definite news from the forces over the border early today. Despite both wireless and telegraph, General Funston had no word of importance.

Grave censorship relative to the movement of the troops was kept up and with the arrival of reinforcements of reporters, General Funston fixed definite hours for seeing the correspondents.

E. V. Fuentes, confidential agent of Carranza, who has been spending several days here, has left for New York, supposedly to try to raise money for the de facto government.

"It hurts the pride of Mexicans to think that the United States has seen fit to invade our country," said Senor

Pesqueira, "but there will be no resistance, except from the followers of Villa. I am sure General Carranza will remain loyal to President Wilson and will co-operate with the Americans. I take no stock in the idea that Villa is regarded as a hero and will gather fresh strength because of the presence of U. S. soldiers south of the border. I am reliably informed that Carranzista soldiers already have Villa surrounded and I believe the outlaw will be taken by our troops before the Americans have a chance to get near him."

Prisoner Reveals Plans of Villa

Douglas, Ariz., March 17.—General P. Elias Calles, military governor of Sonora, reported officially to General Obregon, Mexican war minister, that his command had captured a prisoner who revealed Villa's plans and whereabouts in detail. Copies of this report, General Calles said, were forwarded to General Gavira by him and to the United States army officials at Columbus.

The man, captured at Dos Cabezos, was in the attack on Columbus, Calles said, adding:

He informs me that Villa, after the attack, went direct to the Corralatos, where he murdered seven cowboys because they refused to give him horses. From Corralatos he went to Chocolat, where he stopped on the thirteenth. From there he went direct to Galeana.

This is the first prisoner known to have been captured since Villa's raid. He is being held in Agua Prieta.

Colored Veterans Offer to Serve

John E. Riley Camp, United Spanish War Veterans has voted to tender its services to serve the Commonwealth as a company of infantry in case of need. Samuel Marshall, commander, has tendered the services of the camp to Governor McCall.

Wants Garrisons Barred in Mexico

El Paso, Tex., March 17.—General Gavira transmitted a request from General Obregon, Carranza Minister of War, that no garrison be established by General Pershing in Mexican towns. Obregon said such a step would be certain to cause a crash.

Funston Says He Has No Word from Troops

San Antonio, Tex., March 17.—General Funston, at a conference with the newspaper men late yesterday, said he received no news all day from the United States troops in Mexico.

ZAPATA AND PALAEZ RUSH TROOPS TO HELP VILLA FIGHT AMERICANS

By International News Service.

Washington, March 16.—The Mexican situation is sitting on a powder keg.

This remark was made by an army staff officer after the State and War Departments had received reports indicating that reinforcements from East and Central Mexico were moving to join Villa's army.

Zapata troops, which have been menacing Mexico City, were reported to be concentrating for the purpose of joining Villa. The State Department was advised also that General Palaez, who controlled the Tuxpan-Tampico district, was cooperating with Villa. Palaez has been levying heavy tribute on the oil industries in the rich oil region.

Staff officers of the army said that if Villa's forces were joined by those of his two allies, with the other accretions expected to result from the "invasion" of Mexican soil by United States forces, a considerably larger force would be needed than General Funston now has at his command.

URGE CALLING OUT OF MILITIA.

It would require the 23,000 United States troops available to make any headway against a reinforced Villa army, these officers declared. They believed it would be necessary to call out the National Guard to patrol the border, thus permitting all the regular troops to enter the Mexican campaign.

State Department reports showed an exodus of Americans from Northern and Central Mexico.

A delayed dispatch from American Consul Williams at Torreon confirmed early reports that he had turned the consulate over to the British consul and was leading the American colony in evacuating the place for the border. Williams reported Torreon a storm centre. The railroad had been torn up within a week. He believed it wise to get the American colony out while the communication remained open.

Another American consul who notified the State Department that he intended leaving his post was induced by reassuring advices to remain.

ROJAS ALIVE, SAYS GARCIA.

Suppressed reports from consuls in Mexico indicated that the internal danger was based on the belief prevailing that the Carranza forces would disintegrate if Villa puts up a stiff fight, leaving interior towns without garrisons and at the mercy of bandits.

A report of a revolt of Carranza troops at Ojinaga after the American troops crossed the line, which gave the War Department much concern, was denied by Eliseo Arredondo, Carranza's ambassador-designate. Mr. Arredondo gave out the following dispatch from Andreas C. Garcia, Mexican consul at El Paso:

"The consular agent whom I sent to Marfa, Texas, to investigate the rumors of a revolt of the Constitutionalist garrison at Ojinaga, informs me that Lieutenant-General Lodar, alleged to have been murdered by his troops, is safe and well, utterly disproving the report of the revolt.

FOUR GERMAN OFFICERS SAID TO BE WITH VILLA IN FIELD

By WALLACE E. SMITH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

El Paso, Tex., March 17.—Francisco Villa has with him in the field four former officers of the German army who help him plan his battles, according to information given to the International News Service today by an American now in El Paso, but who formerly served in the Villista army.

He also stated that Villa was plentifully supplied with ammunition and would be able to hold out in the hills for years, unless betrayed.

"The four Germans have been with Villa many months," said the American. "They attend every conference which Villa holds. Through the help of their technical training and Villa's natural ability as a soldier, he will be able to make a stand for years in the hills toward which he is heading.

"I know that since the last trouble broke out Villa's agents have sent enough ammunition to him to fill twenty cars. He has this ammunition and plenty of food hidden away in the hills and is supplied for a long time."

Destroyer Reports Ensenada Is Quiet

San Diego, Cal., March 17.—Normal conditions prevail at Ensenada, Lower California, and no bases of impending trouble, according to Lieutenant Wills, commander of the torpedo boat destroyer Stewart, which returned here from Ensenada.

On orders from Washington, Admiral Winslow, commanding the Pacific fleet, dispatched the Stewart to the Lower California port Wednesday.

Lieutenant Wills informed Admiral Winslow of news of the movement of American troops into Mexico in pursuit of Villa had been received by the military and civilian population of Ensenada without outward sign of indignation.

"There are only about twenty Americans in Ensenada, but a number of others are in the immediate vicinity," Lieutenant Wills said.

FUNSTON GETS RAID REPORT

By International News Service.

San Antonio, Tex., March 17.—Major-General Frederick Funston has received at Fort Sam Houston the first detailed report of the Columbus raid a week ago. It was signed by Colonel Slocum, now in Mexico, at the head of the Thirteenth Cavalry, and was as follows:

At about 4:15 a. m., March 9, 1916, this camp and town were attacked by a force of Mexican bandits under the command of Francisco Villa.

Their number was reported as between 2,500 and 3,000 by Mrs. Maude Wright, who had been captured by the band March 1, 1916, at Pearsons, a Mormon colony in Mexico, and had kept her with them continuously until they retreated across the international boundary line about 6:30 a. m., March 9, 1916, where she was turned loose. She stated that she counted them many times and is positive these numbers are correct.

A negro named Edwin Spencer, whom they captured Sunday, March 5, 1916, reports the numbers as between 1,000 and 1,200.

TELLS OF PURSUIT.

Major Frank Thompkins, Thirteenth Cavalry; Captain Rudolph E. Smyser, Thirteenth Cavalry; First Lieutenant James P. Castleman, Thirteenth Cavalry, pursued the retreating bandits into Mexico with thirty-two men of Troop H and twenty-seven men of Troop F, and reported that the body that was pursued numbered between 700 and 800 men.

They had an excellent opportunity to observe them as it was broad daylight and at one time Major Frank Tompkins, Captain Williams and Captain Smyser were within 400 yards of the main body with thirty-two men of Troop H.

The bandits crossed the international boundary line at a point between two and three miles west of the border gate, and proceeded toward camp in a northeasterly direction. When about one-half mile from the camp they took carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company" and don't make no mistake but stand back with contempt any other fig syrup.—Advertisement.

One Need Tuberculosis is careful attention to hygienic living and proper diet. Science is agreed that fresh air, rest and avoidance of food excesses constitute the most effective non-medical treatment in this widespread disease.

Often, however, these measures need supplementing by some medication. The system lacks sufficient resistance to overcome the attack, and something must be done to assist in upbuilding the patient's strength.

In many cases of this sort Eckman's Alterative has been used with marked success. Its efficacy in this disease has borne fruit in a record of numerous apparent recoveries, and where a tonic is indicated, it has produced most beneficial results.

Since it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try. Sold by all Rikers' Drug Stores and leading druggists.

SYRUP OF FIGS FOR CROSS, SICK FEVERISH CHILD

Look, Mother! Is tongue coated, breath hot and stomach sour?

Harmless "fruit laxative" best to clean tender liver and bowels.

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it cannot cause injury. No difference what ails your child, one-half full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then

New Peril for Americans at Vera Cruz in Activity of Outlaw's Friends

MEXICAN REVOLT FEARED

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, March 17.—That Francisco Villa has practically disbanded his troops to evade capture by the American punitive forces was the word received today by leading members of the local Mexican colony.

They said that all of their information indicated that Villa, realizing that to maintain his forces at full strength inevitably would mean that he would be run down, has ordered his followers to scatter.

Villa, with his picked bodyguard of a few men, is said in these reports to be well on his way into the heart of the mountains, where there are many hiding places known only to himself.

At the War Department it was said that all of the news dealing with the expedition and with Villa's movements that has been received here already has been made public by General Funston at San Antonio and contains no mention of what Villa is doing.

Asked what action will be taken should the reports prove true, the officials said it would make no difference, that Pershing had been ordered to "get Villa," and he would keep moving until the task was accomplished.

FEAR NEW REVOLT.

Meanwhile officials are concerned over the activity of Villa sympathizers in the Tuxpam-Tampico oil fields. They fear that a move is on foot by General Palaez, commanding in that region, to take Vera Cruz, and to lead a new revolt against Carranza which will have the active support of the various elements that have been opposed to Carranza.

Every precaution will be taken to protect Americans and other foreigners in this section.

Admiral Fletcher's Atlantic fleet, now at the Winter training ground at Guantanamo, has been ordered to hold itself in readiness to steam on signal to Mexican waters. In addition the battleship Kentucky, recently at New Orleans, has been ordered to return to Vera Cruz, where she will be held indefinitely.

So far as the administration is concerned it officially is asserted that the Mexican expedition is moving on schedule and exactly as had been planned. It is expected that the various columns will be in position to begin their sweeping movements to locate Villa not later than tomorrow.

MEET NO OPPOSITION.

So far all of the reports received indicate that the expedition has encountered no opposition of any sort.

It is believed that the action of the State Department in directing that the munitions held up at Douglas be released to General Calles, commanding the Carranzista forces in Sonora, will have a good effect.

It will show, officials say, that the United States is deferring to General Carranza in every way as the head of the de facto government and this action especially will likely overcome much of the anti-American feeling recently manifested in the camp of Calles.

In addition, it is expected that this action will result in Calles guarding all of the trails leading into Sonora so that Villa cannot get into that State.

CONGRESS RUSHING PREPAREDNESS BILLS

Washington, D. C., March 17.—The United States army was increased by approximately 30,000 men today.

President Wilson shortly before noon signed the joint resolution passed by the House and Senate authorizing him to recruit the army up to its full authorized strength. It was the last official act required to make the bill effective. Secretary of War Baker signed the paper last night.

Recruiting offices already have begun the work of raising the additional men.

By International News Service.

Washington, March 17.—Under forced draft, the legislative machinery today began to grind out the administration preparedness program. Developments in Mexico and continued European complications, with an insistent demand from the White House, brought to an end the long delay over army legislation, and Congress began to "speed up."

The House, under the spur of a special "gag rule," began debate on the Hay bill, approved by President Wilson, and unanimously recommended by the House Military Affairs Committee.

The measure provides for a standing army of 140,000 men, and federalization of the national guard as a second line of land defence and provides additional officers for civilian, militia and student instruction.

FAVOR BIGGER ARMY.

The debate today developed that a group of members of the House propose to make a fight to increase the committee's provision for the standing army. They want from 200,000 to 300,000 men.

Under the special rule, which was adopted without a dissenting voice, the House will work day and night on the Hay bill, and administration leaders hope to force a vote on the measure before the end of next week.

Meantime, the Senate Military Affairs committee put the finishing touches on the Chamberlain army bill. The Chamberlain bill, providing for a standing army of 250,000, follows closely recommendations of the general staff of the army.

TO DISPLACE WATER BILL.

Senate leaders today planned to displace the Myers-Ferris water power bill, which now has the right of way on the floor, in order to get to the army bill. The water power measure has started a fight that threatens to be long drawn out and the leaders determined that unless a vote on that bill comes soon, it will be laid aside.

Both Senate and House expect to put through the military measures within two weeks. Both will then go to a conference committee, where they will be combined in a compromise measure. The final form of the bill is expected to provide a standing army of 175,000 or 200,000 men.

U S. Consul Williams Flees in a Box Car

Laredo, Tex., March 17.—Traveling the entire distance in box cars, Consul C. A. Williams and forty-five other Americans arrived here from Torreon, having left the Mexican city because they were convinced it was the best thing to do. Their departure, they said, was not caused by any covert acts on the part of the Mexicans or failure on the part of the de facto government officials to offer protection. Eleven Americans joined the party at Monterey.

There were a number of American women in the party. Consul Williams said he would remain at Laredo, or near the Mexican border, pending instructions from the State Department. He refused to discuss his leaving Mexico.

Other members of the party said they had decided to leave because Torreon was considered to be in Villa territory and therefore unsafe for Americans. They said they believed, however, that the Carranza garrison was strong enough to hold the city against a Villa attack. A few unmarried Americans remained, they said.

Food conditions at Torreon also, it was said, influenced the decision to leave, as the city was depending almost entirely upon supplies from the United States.

Durango City, several of the American refugees said, was cut off from all communication. There were said to be at least twenty Americans there. They said they feared Torreon might be similarly isolated by Villa adherents.

Mexicans Guarding Sonora Boundary

By International News Service.

Douglas, Ariz., March 17.—Five hundred Mexicon soldiers, apparently Pima Indians, who came up from the interior of Sonora to Naco Wednesday, broke camp early today and marched eastward. They have been reported along the border, and presumably they took the road that leads to Cabullona, where the former Agua Prieta garrison is now stationed.

From Cabullona, General Calles has been sending troops to guard the mountain passes of Sonora's eastern boundary to cut off Villa if he comes that way.

Two troops of the first United States Cavalry have arrived at Naco, Arizona, and relieved the two companies of the Eleventh Infantry that have been on patrol there. The infantry entrained for Hachita to help the battalion already there guard the base of supplies of Colonel Dodd's columns.

Bills in Congress Calling for Preparedness on Land

WHAT TWO BILLS BEFORE CONGRESS TODAY PROVIDE—

Chamberlain bill in Senate:

Regular army of 250,000 men, adding 130,000 to present war strength.

Federal volunteer army, recruited by congressional districts, of about 250,000 men.

Legislation building up State militia organizations.

Civilian training camps.

Training corps for developing officers in colleges.

Hay bill in House:

Regular army of 140,000 men, 20,000 more than present war strength.

Complete federalization of national guard, to be recruited up to 400,000 or 500,000 men.

Large increase in army officers for training purposes.

Cadet officers' corps of three thousand for training reserve officers.

Civilian training camps and military instruction by army officers in schools.

Regular army reserve, and militia reserve.

FUNSTON SAYS HE IS SATISFIED WITH EXPEDITION'S PROGRESS

By OTHEMAN STEVENS.

San Antonio, Texas, March 17.—"We are quite satisfied with the way matters are progressing," said General Funston. "There has been no untoward incident regarding the columns in Mexico so far as I know or have heard. I hardly look for any definite happenings very soon.

"It is pleasing to know that the relations with Colonel Bertaini's Carranzista force, which joined General Pershing at Palomas, have been harmonious, and, so far as I have been informed, so continue."

It was evident that the General felt exactly what he said. He was serene and was rushing through his work in order to take his afternoon exercise, which to him is a requisite for happiness.

What he said about Colonel Bertaini's amiable co-operation with General Pershing was in consonance with word received by Carranzistas here. They asserted that the order issued two days ago by Minister of War Obregon to all Carranza commands to act in strict accord with the American forces will be obeyed to the letter. It will be so obeyed by the commandants who happen to value their heads. What the solados will do is a bit of psychologic deduction not yet solved.

General Funston is keeping his two eyes open and his powder dry.

Many new forces are making their way to the border, including the Twelfth Cavalry, probably Columbusward.

Gavira Denies He Is Unfriendly to U. S.

By International News Service

El Paso, Tex., March 17.—General Gavira made this statement, which is considered significant of the attitude of all the Mexican authorities:

I was accused by the papers of being unfriendly toward the Americans. I have been afraid that my attitude in supporting the American expedition would be more likely to lay me open to suspicion on the part of my own people.

I want it understood I feel just the same toward Americans now as I have always felt.

Of course I regret that your government has found it necessary to hurry the expedition. I am sure our troops are in a position to put a speedy end to the bandit, Villa.

But since conditions force this upon us, we must work together in perfect accord and both sides must do everything possible to avoid friction.

I am simply working under orders from the First Chief and am anxious that I may not be misunderstood by either my own people or the Americans.

Villa to Be Shot by Mexican Soldiers

Washington, March 17.—Pancho Villa will die by a Mexican and not an American bullet.

This is the intention of the Administration. General Pershing is expected to see that it is carried out.

The Administration is satisfied that nothing will please the Carranza authorities more than to be able to announce that Villa was actually killed by a "Constitutionalist" soldier.

The first evidence of the determination of the Administration to allow the Mexicans to take the prize was shown by the announcement that General Pershing has accepted assistance from a band of Carranza followers.

New York Cavalry Expect Call to Duty

By International News Service.

New York, March 17.—It was rumored persistently that the New York National Guard cavalry was to be ordered to the Mexican border for patrol duty.

The State cavalry is composed of about 1,400 men.

General John F. O'Ryan, commanding the National Guard of New York, may bring with him from Washington orders to prepare the State cavalry for a quick move. He has been conferring with the War Department.

MEXICANS GIVE BABY TO WOMAN

By WALLACE F. SMITH.
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

El Paso, Tex., March 17.—Mrs. Maud Hawkins Wright has at last got her baby back. Over in Juarez, surrounded by the swarthy soldiers of Carranza, with their bristling cartridge belts and long rifles, they placed in her arms a flaxen-haired boy in a smudged gingham apron.

It was the first time she had seen the baby since Pancho Villa tore him from her arms sixteen days ago. While the Mexican soldiers looked on, the same arms pressed the baby to her bosom and her face was buried in the soft baby neck.

Mrs. Wright looked up suddenly. A score of shifting Mexican eyes were watching her. She turned to the door and started for the International Bridge with her restored child.

"Now I can try to be happy again," she said. "But I must hurry home and nurse baby."

Over her shoulder baby John waved his chubby fist. "Tota Eah, Tota Eah," he cooed. Baby John had learned a Mexican word down in the hills where Villa's outlaws live. He was trying to say "Tortilla."

HUSBAND WAS KILLED.

Mrs. Wright's story of her experience with Villa's horde shocked the world just after the Columbus massacre. On March 2 Villa and a raiding band descended on the Wright ranch at Pacheco.

Wright was taken out by the Villistas and killed. Villa took baby John from his mother's arms and laughed when she fought with his men to get the baby back.

"I shall give it to a nice peon woman," he grinned. "Just think, he will never see his mother again."

Mrs. Wright was forced to march with the Villa outlaws. She witnessed the killing at Columbus, after which she escaped. She came to El Paso and went to the home of friends.

"My husband is gone and my home is gone," she said. "I have only the hope of getting my baby back."

With Texas friends and the American consul she went to the Carranza authorities and demanded that her baby be recovered. Pacheco is but a short distance away from the Carranza garrison town of Pearson.

RANCHER FINDS BABY.

Meanwhile her friends got word to some Americans in Pearson. One of the Pearson ranchers took the trail. He found the baby in the home of a Mexican peon woman, formerly employed by Mrs. Wright.

The woman had walked all the way from Pacheco to Pearson. She surrendered the baby.

Finally Mrs. Wright received a note carried into El Paso by a refugee.

"Your baby will be in Juarez," it read. "A conductor named Archer has him."

Some of Mrs. Wright's friends went across the border to get the baby for her. They felt it better that Mrs. Wright did not go. Not that she could not control herself. The woman who was praised by Villa for her courage had not wept once since she arrived in Texas. The Mexican authorities at the railroad station objected. They would only allow the baby to be given to the mother.

Over on the American side Mrs. Wright awaited the word that her baby was returning. Mrs. Louis Hess, at whose home she is stopping, had gone across the river for her. Finally the telephone bell rang. Mrs. Wright hurried to answer.

SOBS OVER CHILD.

"Just a minute," she heard Mrs. Hess say over the wire. Then came the most wonderful voice in the world.

"Mama," said the voice. "Mama; Tota Eah."

The woman who had not flinched during the march with Villa sobbed and broke down. A few minutes later she was speeding for the Mexican border.

The conductor, an American named James Archer, held the baby and belligerently faced the Mexican soldiers in the general headquarters. The authorities demanded that Mrs. Wright sign papers and make depositions endlessly before they gave her the child.

Back in her home in El Paso Mrs. Wright was locked up in her room with the baby.

"She's been bathing him and nursing him and just mothering over him since she got back," said Mrs. Hess. "She's going away from El Paso now."

From the closed room came the voice of the baby: "Tota Eah, Mama; Tota Eah."

RUSH WORK AT NAVY YARDS

Washington, March 17.—Confidential dispatches to the War Department which leaked out in spite of the efforts of officials to keep them secret, showed that the situation on the Mexican border was far from reassuring.

The department was informed that sniping had occurred at several points. In view of the known feeling of the Mexican military and civil populations in the towns across the border from Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, this gave cause for official alarm.

From the reports reaching Washington it was impossible to learn whether the sniping was directed against the American military expedition, now well into Mexico, or whether the snipers were operating against Americans on the border, or both.

Secretary of War Baker received a long dispatch from General Funston, outlining in full his troops' movements across the border, giving the composition of his forces, the number of guns and the plans for the campaign to capture Villa. This message was communicated to President Wilson and was to be placed before the Cabinet today.

It became known that the Navy Department has sent orders to all naval vessels undergoing overhauling in navy yards to be ready for possible service.

The Navy Department has been compelled to act with caution, as there is no desire to make any threatening naval movements in Mexican waters. The Department has been acting on the theory that Carranza must be presumed to be operating in good faith until conditions showed the contrary. Nevertheless steps were being taken to put the fleet in readiness and warships on both the east and west coasts were being held within easy reach of Mexican waters.

The battleship Kentucky was ordered from New Orleans to Vera Cruz. Its powerful wireless is needed to direct the movements of other warships if necessity arises.

BUY 27 MOTOR TRUCKS.

The War Department has been advised that the signal corps is following the expeditionary force into Mexico and is building a telegraph line to the first field base established. This wire will be kept open for military and press dispatches.

The quartermaster corps has established supply depots at Chicago and St. Louis for the transportation of food supplies to the armies on the border and in the field. Fresh meats will be sent direct to El Paso and Columbus in refrigerator cars for shipment over the lines of communication established by rail and motor truck direct to the bases in the interior.

The War Department sent officers to the office of the White Motor Company at Cleveland and the Jeffery Motor Company at Kenosha to supervise the shipment of twenty-seven motor trucks from each factory for use on the border. The officers will accompany the shipments to El Paso and thence to Columbus, N. M., where the motor trucks will be used to transport food supplies, ammunition and water to supply bases in interior Mexico.

These fifty-four motor trucks will be added to those already on the border. They will patrol the line of communication established from the supply bases to the border concentration camps. In addition there will be motorcycle patrols established. Twenty-eight chauffeurs and five motorcyclists will be assigned to each motor truck company.

LODGE SCORES WILSON, WILL RUN AGAIN

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge opened the national campaign in Massachusetts before the Lynn Republican Club in a speech during which he bitterly scored the foreign policy of President Wilson and the Democratic National administration in general.

He announced that he was a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate.

Four minutes and a half of applause greeted the close of the address and then three cheers were offered for him as the "next President of the United States."

His speech reaching a climax when, after describing what had taken place in Mexico and on the ocean highways, he declared:

We are told that the great cry of the Democratic party is to be that their President has kept the peace. The virtue of keeping the peace depends altogether on how it is kept.

The man who runs away and leaves his wife or daughter or sister to be attacked or outraged keeps the peace and is not worthy to cumber the earth.

You can always keep the peace if you will submit to any wrong, to any outrage, to any oppression.

The peace of this country would have been far better kept, we should be in far less danger of war today, or of war when peace comes among the warring nations of Europe, if we had kept it without humiliation, kept it to honor and without fear.

Humiliation and neglect of the rights of American citizens are not necessary for keeping the peace.

INJURIOUS RULE.

In my opinion, since the foundation of the government, with the exception of the administration of Buchanan, there has been no administration in power which has been so injurious to the United States as that now in control at Washington.

Yet with all their new taxes and with the fresh burdens they present us with a deficit in the treasury.

It is a melancholy picture of broken promises and disastrous results.

They have framed their policies to impose a penalty on everyone who wins an honest business success, and they have treated business success as if it was a crime.

The President has said, it is true, that he has a single track mind, but it is a track interspersed with so many turntables that it is not always easy to find out the direction in which the mind is running.

Now this administration does not seek information, and is indifferent to argument and reason, but it is extremely sensitive to votes.

The votes began to look ominous on the question of national defence, the turntable suddenly operated and national defence became a leading policy.

CONDITIONS WORSE.

The present administration found Mexico and Mexican relations in a bad condition. They have made the bad conditions infinitely worse.

Americans have been murdered in Mexico, soldiers wearing the American uniform have been shot on the soil of the United States. More American lives have been lost in Mexico than we lost in the Spanish war.

You will find no lack of bold language in the dispatches to the British government where there is nothing at issue but trade and dollars, where the administration thinks that votes may be gained and none lost.

More than 100 Americans, men, women and children, rightfully on board the Lusitania, an unarmed merchantman, were sent to their death without warning and nothing has yet been done except to pour out words and carry on inconclusive negotiations for eight months.

RIGHTS NEGLECTED.

What I charge is that the rights of American citizens have been absolutely neglected and protection denied them.

Nothing like it has ever happened before in the history of the United States, and when we change the government, as we shall on the fourth of next March, nothing like it, I believe, will ever happen again.

DROP CASE AGAINST CHAUFFEUR YOUNG

Ralph G. Young, nineteen, of Brockton, the chauffeur who came to Boston seeking employment and was arrested by the police of the East Dedham station charged with attempting to break and enter a Columbus avenue residence, has had the case against him nol prossed by Assistant District Attorney Daniel V. McIsaac.

Young, upon coming to Boston and inquiring where he could secure a room, was directed to a Columbus avenue house. While attempting to rouse the occupants he was arrested by a policeman whom, he claimed, shackled him.

By Dr. McIsaac's action Young is now cleared of any suspicion as to his conduct at the time of arrest.

HURT IN FALL DOWN SUBWAY STAIRS

Thomas Tyrrel, thirty-eight, of Spring court, Watertown, was injured by a fall down the steps leading to the south-bound cars in the Park street station of the subway during the rush hour.

Tyrrel, who was in a crowd, either stumbled on the steps or was pushed. He was taken to the Relief Hospital.

MRS. VIOLET C. MOOERS, Winter street manicurist, who was slain by Irving E. Olmstead.

OLMSTEAD WAS A RECKLESS GUNNER

The contention of Mrs. Irving Ellis Olmstead, wife of the Newtonville man held for the murder of Mrs. Violet C. Mooers, the Winter street manicurist, that her husband drew the revolver he had just purchased with the intention of "bluffing" and was crazed into shooting by the manicurist's taunts, was sustained in part, today, by former friends of Olmstead in Brewster.

These Brewster folk recalled that prediction had often been made by those living near Olmstead's camp on Long Pond that he would some day get into serious difficulty through his reckless use of firearms.

They declared that Olmstead had several times terrified fishermen in Long Pond who, he thought, were interfering with his shooting at the duck camp, by shooting his gun over their heads, but aiming so near that the frightened fishermen declared they could hear the whistle of the shot, and see (w)patter the lake near them.

SCARED BREWSTER PEOPLE.

In Brewster they said that nobody believed Olmstead had any intention of shooting persons who frightened away the ducks, but that his recklessness with his shotgun made the lake in the vicinity of his camp no place at all to fish.

From their experience with Olmstead, Brewster folk believe that he might have drawn out the revolver he happened to have in his pocket, and even have fired it without ever intending to do more than frighten the manicurist. They also seem to believe that the effect of the first shot might have crazed Olmstead, as his wife claimed.

While Olmstead maintained his camp on Long Pond he frequently aroused some little friction with the natives. He spent considerable money, they said, to try to have the level of the water in the pond lowered to facilitate his duck shooting. This he had even carried to the State House, where residents had appeared both for an against his plan. When he found his agitation fruitless, they said, he abandoned his camp there.

VICTIM FROM NOVA SCOTIA.

Mrs. Mooers, it was learned yesterday, was born in Digby, Nova Scotia. She came with her family to Gloucester when she was a young girl. She was well known in Rockport as "Callie McCullum," before her marriage.

She was considered very attractive when she was a girl and made many friends in the summer hotel in Gloucester where she worked. When the Summer season closed she came to Boston, still working as a waitress.

It was in this way that she first met Harry Mooers, her husband, who was a waiter in the same hotel. Her husband died about fourteen years ago. She had been a frequent visitor at Rockport, where a married sister still lives, and was always very popular in the fishing town.

The funeral of Mrs. Mooers was held today at the home of her sister, Mrs. Jennings, at No. 139 Broadway, Somerville.

Young people need clear complexions

If you find yourself "left out" because of a poor skin, and want a clear, fresh complexion, use at least once a day. Wash thoroughly with a warm, creamy lather of it, then rinse the face with plenty of cold water.

It does not often take many days of such regular care with Resinol Soap to show an improvement, because the Resinol medication soothes and refreshes the skin, while the perfectly pure soap is cleansing it.

In severe or stubborn cases, Resinol Soap should be aided by a little Resinol Ointment. All druggists sell them.

OUCH! PAIN, PAIN. RUB RHEUMATIC ACHING JOINTS

Rheumatism is "pain only." Not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Stop drugging. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacob's Oil" right into your sore, stiff, aching joints and muscles, and relief comes instantly. "St. Jacob's Oil" is a harmless rheumatism cure which never disappoints and cannot burn the skin.

Limber up! Quit complaining! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacob's Oil" at any drug store, and in just a moment you'll be free from rheumatic pain, soreness, stiffness and swelling. Don't suffer! Relief awaits you. "St. Jacob's Oil" has cured millions of rheumatism sufferers in the last half century, and is just as good for sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, backache, sprains.—Advertisement.

Hair Often Ruined By Washing With Soap

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

$300,000 DRUG SEIZURE IS MADE

Intense gratification was felt in the office of John F. O'Malley, United States Collector of Internal Revenue for this district, today at news from Detroit of the seizure in that city of habit-forming drugs of an estimated retail value of $300,000.

This is regarded as one of the most important seizures since the Harrison drug law went into effect and federal officers were given a statute "with teeth in it" to back their drive against habit-forming drugs and the horrors that go hand-in-hand with these evil concoctions.

Deputy Collector J. N. O'Donohue, who handles the legal end of many of the drug cases which came within the jurisdiction of Collector Malley, said today:

"If the dispatches from Detroit are correct, this case is very important. The seizure of a quantity of habit-forming drugs of the value represented will rank as one of the largest under the Harrison law. Officials in Boston who are in charge of enforcement of the Harrison law will be greatly gratified at the stroke accomplished by the officials in Detroit."

SEIZED IN RAID.

The Detroit dispatches related the arrest of Emil West, an employe of a Detroit wholesale drug house. West's rooms were raided by a squad detailed by Collector James J. Brady of the Michigan district. His men have been working on the case for a month. Finally their plans came to a head. They swooped down on West, put him under arrest and searched his apartment.

The search, the dispatches say, revealed two suit cases jammed with habit-forming drugs which the Brady deputies declared, were stolen by West from the drug concern.

The wholesale value of the drugs was listed at $50,000, but the deputies, familiar with the high price which is charged to the unfortunate victims of the drug habit, said that the "stuff" would bring a total of $300,000 when parceled out among drug users.

Deputy O'Donohue, discussing the estimated valuation of the seized drugs, said in Boston:

"The seized drugs may consist of morphine sulphate or cocaine sulphate in highly concentrated form. In such case thousands of dollars' worth could be put into two suit cases. When retailed among drug users the amount realized would be increased many times, of course."

ARRESTED BEFORE.

West, the drug clerk under arrest, admitted to the Federal officials, the Detroit dispatches added, that he served five years in the Jefferson City, Mo., penitentiary under the name of A. J. Huther. He also admitted that he ran an illicit drug market in Jefferson City.

Deputy O'Donohue feels that, even if the drugs in the Detroit case had been sent out for distribution, such a large amount would have led to detection sooner or later. But it is infinitely better to have nipped the drug-spreading plan in the bud and to have seized the drugs in such compact form, before they had started on their insidious way to the actual victims of the habit.

B. & M. CONDUCTOR FALLS UNDER TRAIN

Concord, N. H., March 17.—Conductor Fred Pennock of the Boston & Maine expects to resume work in a day or two, following his marvelous escape from serious injury in being run over by a string of freight cars. He slipped down in front of the freight string in the local yard. Two cars passed over him, clearing his body. The third car caught his foot. He was dragged several yards. The yard men were surprised to find Pennock alive. His face was cut and his body was wrenched and bruised, but these were the extent of his injuries.

4 HURT AS SLED HITS WHITNEY AUTO

New York, March 17.—In a collision of a bobsled with an automobile, owned by Payne Whitney, at Manhasset, L. I., four persons were badly injured. They are Misses Frances Rheinhardt, Frances Miller and Marie Dutto, and Felix Kowalski. All were taken to the Nassau County Hospital at Mineola.

Chauffeur Herman Schneider did not see the sled in time to turn away. Miss Rheinhardt has a fractured jaw and nose.

DAVID H. SHEEHAN OF BROOKLINE DEAD

David H. Sheehan, 70, who had been superintendent of the parks and playgrounds of Brookline for twenty-two years, is dead from bronchitis. Mr. Sheehan was a noted landscape gardener. He designed the courtyard at the Boston Public Library, had charge of the Boston Public Garden during the Grand Army encampment, and planned the monument grounds at Plymouth, besides many other noted places.

15 HURT AS PLOUGH CRASHES INTO TRAIN

By International News Service.

Schenectady, N. Y., March 17.—A snow plough crashed into the rear end of a Delaware & Hudson passenger train at Schoharie Junction and sent the coach over a fifteen-foot embankment. Fifteen persons were injured. They were rushed to a hospital in Oneonta. The train was discharging passengers when, without warning, the plough tore into the rear coach, in which were about forty passengers.

Steel Syndicate Busy.

Berlin (by wireless to Sayville), March 17.—The German steel syndicate in February shipped 282,269 tons of steel, compared with 285,784 tons in January, and 266,905 in February of last year.

MOVEMENT FOR BROOKLINE SUBWAY

As a result of the death of Mary Hartigan on the Boston & Albany crossing at the Brookline Station last week, a petition is being circulated throughout Brookline by John Fleming that a subway be constructed under the tracks where the fatality occurred. He will present the petition at the next town meeting.

BROCKTON RECOVERS STOLEN HORSE

A two-seated sleigh, drawn by a chestnut horse, the property of Charles H. Bell, No. 172 Freeport street, Dorchester, which was stolen in Dorchester, was recovered by the Brockton police early today.

Two men who were in the sleigh were arrested. The horse was at the point of exhaustion, and the outfit showed signs of hard usage.

LODGER DROPS DEAD IN SOUTH END HOUSE

Isaac H. Hardy, forty, dropped dead early today in a lodging house No. 1119 Washington street, where he made his home. His nephew William M. Lynde, No. 196 Shawmut avenue, was notified, as was the medical examiner. Death was believed due to natural causes.

REVERE WOMAN MAY DIE OF HER BURNS

While she was toasting bread over a gas stove at the Atlantic House, Revere, early today, the clothing of Mrs. Ellen Kiley, sixty, a cook, caught fire and the woman sustained burns which, it is feared, will cause her death. The screams of Mrs. Kiley, who lives at No. 41 Davis street, Revere, brought other employes of the house to her assistance, but not before her clothing was burned from her body. She was taken to the Frost Memorial Hospital in the Metropolitan police ambulance.

ALL ASSAULTS FAIL AT VERDUN

By International News Service.

Paris, March 17.—German troops today launched five violent attacks against the French positions at the village and fort of Vaux, northeast of Verdun, but all the attacks were checked by the French artillery, according to the communique issued by the Paris War Office this afternoon. This also states that the Germans suffered heavy losses.

On the west bank of the Meuse a slackening to the terrific bombardment is reported. The Germans did not renew their attacks on Dead Man's Hill during the night. The text of the communique follows:

"West of the Meuse, the bombardment slackened during the night in the region of Bethincourt and Cumieres. After the bloody check which his attack received yesterday, the enemy did not renew his assaults on the height of Le Mort Homme (Dead Man's Hill).

"East of the Meuse an increase in the bombardment was followed, beginning at 8 a. m. by a series of offensive actions of a very violent character against our positions at the village and Fort of Vaux.

ALL ATTACKS REPULSED.

"Five successive attacks with large forces were launched by the Germans in this region without a single success, two on the village, two others on the slopes of the ridge on which the fort is located and finally a last one by which the enemy attempted to debouch from a cross roads to the southeast of the village of Vaux.

"All these attacks, broken by our curtains of fire and our machine guns, cost the enemy severe losses.

"In the Woevre region no development is reported with the exception of a reciprocal cannonade in the entire sector.

"West of Pont-a-Mousson, a surprise attack against a salient of the enemy's line at the forest of Mort Marie enabled us to bring back some prisoners and to inflict some losses on the enemy.

"The night was calm on the rest of the front."

CLAIM TO HOLD HILL.

According to the Berlin official statement, two more assaults have been launched by the French in an effort to dislodge the Germans from their position on Le Mort Homme (Dead Man's Hill) five miles northwest of Verdun, but both were unsuccessful.

In the first attack some of the French soldiers succeeded in reaching the German lines where they were captured, it was said. The second assault broke down under the curtain of fire from the German guns.

Artillery combats have been very tenacious in Champagne, and the Woevre district.

Following is the text of the official report:

"West front—Six mines were exploded by the English south of Loos without any success for the enemy.

"Artillery activity of a very tenacious character, has taken place in Champagne and between the Meuse and Moselle Rivers (the Woevre district).

"The French again attacked the height of Dead Man's Hill. A few companies succeeded in reaching our lines where the few remaining unwounded soldiers were made prisoners.

"A second attack was stopped by our curtain of fire.

"East front.—There is nothing to report.

"Balkan front.—The positions are unchanged."

PORTUGUESE PLAY HYMNS FOR WAR

Lisbon, March 17.—Bands paraded the streets of the city all Wednesday night, playing the "Marseillaise" and the Portuguese hymn, and accompanied by cheering crowds. Otherwise calm prevails throughout Portugal.

Don Miguel of Braganza has left the Austrian Red Cross and his sons have abandoned the armies of the Central Empires. Prince Alphonse of Braganza and Savoy has offered his services to the Portugal government.

WAR SUMMARY

Official bulletins from Paris and Berlin agree that the positions in the neighborhood of Dead Man's Hill are unchanged. The French say the Germans attacked and were repulsed. The Germans say the French attacked and were repulsed. It appears to be established that the Germans have gained a firm foothold upon the crest of this important height. If they are able to complete their conquest and control the whole summit, the French must fall back a distance of two to three miles before finding ground suitable for another defence.

Von Tirpitz is out "because of illness" and it is argued his retirement means the German government's dissatisfaction with submarine warfare as heretofore waged. Gallieni, French war minister, is also out "because of illness." It seems a fair assumption that this means French dissatisfaction with the military situation.

Elsewhere in France affairs were reasonably quiet, the French attacking in Champagne, but losing some 150 prisoners in the process and gaining no ground. The loss of prisoners by the attackers in trench warfare has been rare heretofore.

The Italian offensive along the Isonzo assumed importance today. The Italians still hold the major portion of their gains of three days ago, and continue their attacks. Thus far the results have not been important. They may develop into importance, however.

The British report minor grenade fighting.

Several happenings of diplomatic importance marked the day. They included the following:

1—Brazil, according to London, has seized forty-four German vessels in Brazilian ports. These ranged from "12,000 to 20,000 tons," the report said. One named was the Hamburg American liner Bluecher, 12,350 tons, at Pernambuco. A like action, seizure of German vessels, prompted Germany to declare war on Portugal. Whether Berlin will take similar action toward Brazil remains to be seen.

2—Dispatches from The Hague, by way of London, quote officers of the Dutch steamer Tubantia as saying that vessel was torpedoed without warning by a submarine. Ten of her passengers and crew are still missing. If she was torpedoed—and Washington has asked for the facts—cause for friction with Germany is furnished.

3—Sir Edward Grey says Italy will at once seize German vessels, thus provoking war between Germany and Italy at last.

The report that Brazil has seized German vessels is taken with reserve. There is no known reason for Brazil entering the war except possible governmental sympathy with Portugal. A war expert, with a sense of humor, suggested that if Brazil had entered the only reason he could imagine would be a desire to participate in the luxury of an American relief fund. Brazil could not attack Germany; Germany could not attack Brazil. If the allies win, Brazil would gain little or nothing; if the allies lose, Brazil would have to pay Germany and the Monroe Doctrine would get a jolt.

FEAR 12 LIVES LOST WHEN BIG DUTCH LINER WAS SUNK

By SYDNEY B. CAVE.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, March 17.—It is now believed that from eight to twelve persons lost their lives when the Dutch liner Tubantia was sunk in the North Sea Thursday morning.

A telegram from Amsterdam quotes the Dutch Minister of Marine as saying:

"It has not yet been ascertained whether the Tubantia was mined or torpedoed. Both possibilities have been mentioned."

On the other hand a telegram to the Telegraph from Rotterdam follows:

"Information just received removes all doubt that the Tubantia was torpedoed. The torpedo was seen approaching the ship by the lookout. It struck the vessel exactly amidships about three yards below the water line, causing an enormous explosion and tearing a big hole through which the water poured.

"Passengers arriving here report that several persons lost their lives in the explosion and that one of the lifeboats capsized after it had been launched. The survivors suffered terribly from the cold. The night was foggy and raw."

A dispatch from The Hague says further that evidence given by officers of the Tubantia to representatives of the Dutch Ministry of Marine is to the effect that the ship was attacked by a submarine, and torpedoed without warning.

It was announced today that 377 survivors from the Tubantia have been or will be landed at various Dutch ports. This would indicate that at least ten are still missing, as it was stated yesterday that the Tubantia carried eighty-seven passengers and a crew of 300 or more.

There were at least three Americans on board all of whom are believed to have been saved.

Reports brought to shore by survivors are confused. At Flushing, where the tug Hein landed twenty-two survivors, it was reported that two or three passengers had been drowned and that one of the lifeboats had been lost. Survivors at Flushing also mentioned the fact they could see several searchlights nearby. All the mails and cargo of the Tubantia were lost.

Captain H. K. Wytama, master of the Tubantia, expressed the belief that one of the lifeboats, containing fifteen passengers, had been smashed. He did not know how many of the persons were picked up from the water by other boats. Captain Wytama, as well as other officers of the ship, believe she was attacked by a submarine.

Among the survivors landed at Maassluis, Holland, are the family of Richard Schilling, who is said to be an employe of the American consular service; Ernest Garcao, Uruguayan consul at Amsterdam, and Dr. Salinas Vega, Bolivian minister to Germany and his family.

The names of the Americans on board are given as Richard, Emma and Carmen Schilling. Schilling is said to be a consular agent.

Thin Folks Who Would Be Fat

Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More.

"I'd certainly give most anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," declares every excessively thin man or woman. Such a result is not impossible, despite past failures. Most thin people are victims of malnutrition, a condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are, when the powers of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood, much of the fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy, normal amount of fat, the nutritive processes must be artificially supplied with the power which nature has denied them. This can probably best be accomplished by eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is a careful combination of six splendid assimilative agents. Taken with meals they mix with the food to turn the sugars and starches of what you have eaten into rich, ripe nourishment for the tissues and blood and its rapid effect has been in many cases reported remarkable. Reported gains of from ten to twenty-five pounds in a single month are by no means infrequent. Yet its action is perfectly natural and absolutely harmless. Sargol is sold by druggists everywhere and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

NOTE:—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported, care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you really feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with a coated tongue, foul breath or a dull, dizzy headache; or, if your meals sour and turn into gas and acids, you have a real surprise awaiting you.

Tomorrow morning, immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and thirty feet of intestines all the indigestible waste, poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal.

Those subject to sick headaches, backache, bilious attacks, constipation, or any form of stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin enjoying this morning inside bath. It is said that men and women who try this become enthusiastic and keep it up daily. It is a splendid health measure, for it is more important to keep clean and pure on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing disease, while the bowel pores do.

The principle of bathing inside is not new, as millions of people practice it. Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.—Advertisement.

INCREASED WAR TAXES FOR GERMANY

By International News Service.

Berlin, March 17.—National economy of the strictest kind was demanded today by Dr. Helfferich, Secretary of Finance, when he introduced in the Reichstag the new budget and bills providing for increased war taxes.

"We shall put the brakes on wherever we can," said Dr. Helfferich. "This is not red tape, but a national duty. It is foresight against the needs of the coming days."

The financial secretary then pointed out that an increase of revenues by taxation was necessary notwithstanding the fact that every German believes that peace will bring financial advantages to the German Empire.

After pointing out the war expenses not included in the budget Dr. Helfferich said that he war has greatly increased the public interest in the national debt, which is now $575,750,000 against $317,000,000 last year.

The budget balances with a $120,000,000 deficit which is to be covered by new taxes.

Dr. Helfferich compared the financial strength of Germany with that of England and France, saying:

"Up to the present Germany has floated $6,250,000,000 war loans, whereas France has not raised even $2,500,000,000, and England has floated less than $4,750,000,000 in war loans, of which $3,750,000,000 are short term bonds. All of Germany's loans are part of the consolidated debt."

During January and February, the financial secretary declared, the cost of the war for Germany was reduced to $500,000,000.

German savings banks now contain $125,000,000 more deposits than in 1914 notwithstanding the fact that $1,125,000,000 was withdrawn to supply to the war loans.

Switching over to military affairs, the official said:

"Just now a great battle is raging around Verdun. Our troops on the firing line have the right to expect from us that we at home prove worthy of them and that all of us who remain behind does his share by contributing what he can."

Dr. Helfferich urged the Reichstag to lose no time in adopting the budget and passing the taxation bills.

The new taxation, it is estimated, will increase the government's revenues by about $2,500,000 a week.

The speech of Dr. Helfferich was greeted with loud applause and as soon as it was delivered the Reichstag adjourned.

'IRISH ARE FIGHTING ON SIDE OF LIBERTY'

By International News Service.

Ottawa, Ont., March 17.—C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, the leading representative of the Irish in Canada, when asked for a St. Patrick's Day message, said:

"Remember that the Irish are fighting in this war as they always have fought and always will fight, on the side of liberty."

Mr. Doherty was formerly president of the Canadian branch of the Land League.

E O R F D Z

You are to read the large letters with each eye separately, at a distance of 20 feet, and also read the following small paragraph at exactly 13 inches from each eye.

The fourteenth of August was the day fixed upon for the sailing of the brig Pilgrim, on her voyage from Boston round Cape Horn, to the western coast of North America. As she was to get under way early in the afternoon I made my appearance on board at twelve o'clock in full sea-rig, and with my chest, containing an outfit for a two or three years voyage which I had [illegible]

If you cannot do this it is proof that either one or both eyes are defective or that you are now wearing incorrect glasses. In either case you require the immediate attention of a Specialist in Optometry. If you cannot qualify on these eye tests and are troubled with headache, eye strain may be the cause. Have one of our Specialists examine your eyes. By appointment if preferred.

FLUSH KIDNEYS WITH SALTS IF BACK IS ACHING

Noted Authority says we eat too much meat, which clogs Kidneys.

Take glass of Salts when Kidneys hurt or Bladder bothers you.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid, which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Advertisement.

THOUSANDS PARADE IN HONOR OF HISTORIC EVACUATION DAY

At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon the big Evacuation Day parade began to form in East Fourth street, in the City Point section of South Boston, and promptly at 3 o'clock Chief Marshal Paul J. Jakmauh gave the order to start.

The bright sunshine brought out practically every member of the roster, and as a result of the all-night labors of the street department and the Elevated, the parade route was clean and dry.

After the snow had been removed Mayor Curley ordered loads of cinders carted to South Boston, and these were spread on the streets through which the parade was to pass, so that the marchers would not slip on the icy pavements.

SOUVENIR VENDERS BUSY.

"Open house" was kept by all of South Boston's clubs and many residences, and hundreds of guests were entertained throughout the day. All business establishments were gayly decorated, and the enterprising sidewalk venders did a big business selling souvenirs to the crowds which lined the route.

The parade started at the corner of Farragut road and Broadway, and by a fairly direct route, marched through the main streets to the corner of Broadway and Dorchester avenue.

Notice was sent out by the Boston Elevated that during the parade Dover street and Dorchester avenue cars would be held up, and passengers were cautioned to transfer to and from the elevated at Northampton street. Extra service, before and after the parade was promised. Dorchester avenue-Broadway cars were to be diverted via Summer street extension and E street.

ROSTER OF PARADE.

The roster of the parade was:

Platoon of Mounted Police.
Chief Marshal and Staff.
Coast Artillery Corps Band, Staff and Troops.
Marine Corps Band and Huzarkeia.
Coastguard Service.
Ninth Regiment Band, Col. Logan and Staff and 12 Companies of the Ninth Regiment.
Moore's Band and 11th Company.
C. A. C., M. V. M.
Ambulance Corps and Field Hospital Corps, Massachusetts Naval Militia (six companies).
Washington Band, G. A. R.
Dahlgren Post, G. A. R.
Mal. M. Thom Veterans' Union.
Maj. M. Dartmouth Camp, S. W. V.
Roger Wolcott Camp, U. S. W. V.

Division 1, A. O. H.
Prince Henry Veterans.
Ninth Regiment Veterans' Association.
St. Vincent's cadets (five companies and Ambulance Company).
St. Mary's Cardinal Cadets (six companies).
St. Gabriel's Cadets (Winthrop town company).
Carriages containing Guests and Members of the Ninth Regiment Association.

As a preliminary to the celebration today, a banquet and exercises were held last night in the new Municipal Building. Congressman Edward Keating, guest of honor, was the principal speaker. He scored "Americans" who held meetings advocating that the lives of 100,000,000 people be placed in jeopardy by war, and declared that not all the hyphenated Americans were born across the water.

The Wonderful New Product

Won't shrink woolens! Won't turn silks yellow! Won't injure even chiffons!

Open a package of Lux.

Notice how entirely different it looks from any other soap product you have ever seen.

Nothing like it has ever before been manufactured.

It is not a soap powder! Not a chipped soap! Not a cake of soap! But pure essence of soap in flakes! Notice how delicate, how transparently pure each flake is.

The modern form of soap

This is the form in which the woman of today demands soap—in flakes. Ready to use, no shaving, no chipping required.

Cleans without rubbing

Throw the flakes into hot water; whisk into a lather; instantly you get just the rich, thick suds you have always wanted. Then work the clothes about in these suds; no rubbing is necessary.

You will never use cake or chip soap for these uses again

For fine laundering, soap should never be rubbed directly on the article. This coarsens and discolors the fabric. For this reason Lux is a tremendous advance over a cake of soap. Once you have tried it, you will never be satisfied with a cake of soap for anything but rough washing.

In these flakes, Lux contains more real soap than five times its weight in ordinary soaps, chipped soap or soap powders! Try it, no matter what soap product you now use. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

JOHN M. HARNEY, newly-elected president of the Charitable Irish Society.

GIVE BANQUET IN HONOR OF ST. PATRICK

The leading civic observance of St. Patrick's Day in Boston will be the banquet of the Charitable Irish Society, to be held at the Hotel Somerset at 6:30 this evening.

It will be the 178th annual meeting of the society.

The post-prandial exercises will be in charge of Hugh A. Carney as toastmaster.

The toast list for tonight's dinner is as follows:

Congressman William H. Murray of Oklahoma, "The United States of America."

William T. A. Fitzgerald, president of the society in 1914, "The Day We Celebrate."

Governor McCall, "The Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

Mayor Curley, "The City of Boston."

President Frederick A. Tupper of the Canadian Club of Boston, "Our Sister Societies."

The special guests will be Congressman Thomas Gallagher of Illinois, Congressman Edward Keating of Colorado, Congressman James A. Gallivan, Congressman Peter F. Tague, Dr. Thomas F. Harrington, Dr. Timothy J. Murphy, Captain Augustus G. Reynolds, Rev. Michael J. Ahearn, S. J., Edwin A. Shuman and Dr. John H. Moran, who is the member longest on the rolls of the society and one of its former presidents.

The election of officers of the Charitable Irish Society for the year 1916-17, at the annual meeting held today at Young's Hotel, resulted as follows:

President, John M. Harney; vice-president, Daniel Y. Mclsaac; treasurer, John B. Dore; secretary, John J. Keenan; assistant secretary, Joseph F. O'Loughlin; keeper of the silver key, John H. Sullivan; directors, James F. McDermott, James A. Dorsey, Charles E. Sullivan and Michael J. Carroll.

PLAN CONTEST OF DEPUTY CAIN'S WILL

Six nephews and nieces of the late Laurence Cain, deputy of the Boston Police Department, have announced their intention of contesting the will of their uncle. The value of the estate is unknown as no inventory has been filed. Under the terms of the will his wife, Mrs. Ellen A. Cain, received the entire estate.

The contesting relatives are Mary Louise Cain, Julia Catherine Cain, William L. Cain, E. H. Cain, Katherine Cain Kenyon and Lawrence A. Brazan.

PRICE OF SUGAR AND GROCERIES TO JUMP

There is every prospect of much higher prices on granulated sugar. The present retail price about 5½ to 5¾c per pound, and, owing to the enormous export demand, there is every indication of record high prices on sugar in the next few months.

Foreign orders are also affecting the price of lard and provisions generally and there is apparently much reason to expect higher prices in these commodities.

HOLD WHITMORE IN BAIL OF $5,000

George A. Whitmore, the State street broker, arrested at his home on Commonwealth avenue, Allston, Monday, was brought before Chief Justice Aiken of the superior court and arraigned on three indictments charging him with the larceny of $21,500 from Harriet M. Dunnington of Hyde Park. He was bailed in $5,000. It is alleged he secured the money by selling stock for an iceless refrigerator.

Varied Career of Keating of Colorado

By BEN WILLIAMS.

Congressman Edward Keating of Pueblo, Colorado, who delivered a notable address at the Evacuation Day banquet in South Boston, was born in Kansas, but like all who Kansans turned his face toward the along the Arkansas river and dropped into Colorado. Ed Keating was but five years old when he made the momentous decision to link up with the Centennial State, and that same wealth of foresight and decision which marked his move as early life has followed him into the forties (to be exact, he is just forty).

As a compromise with Kansas, Keating had himself elected in a Congressional district in which the counties of Kiowa, Prowers and Bade abutted on the State of Kansas, and in the summers when love of his old birth State returns he can travel east of Grenada, straddle the State line, and deliver a perfectly neutral speech as to who owns the water in the Arkansas river, after Colorado has taken the last drop out with a sponge.

Ed Keating is a newspaper man. As a political writer on the Denver papers, Keating gained a knowledge of Colorado and its big men which made his articles of national importance. No man in Colorado has had a closer insight into, and knows more thoroughly the reasons and counter reasons for the troubles which shook the very foundations of the State for years.

DIFFICULT STEERING.

To steer a straight course through that tangled clash of the various interests in Colorado was some job, but Keating came out unscathed. As managing editor of the Denver Times under the ownership of Thomas M. Patterson, Keating bore the brunt of the warfare which was then being waged between the Public Utilities Corporation and the owner of the Times. To be a managing editor in Denver in those days required more than wisdom.

The fable of the "Arizona Kicker" was lived over again. And even if the editor, as in the early days, did not carry his shooting irons on a hair trigger he at least saw that his eyes were sure opened before he took up his morning stroll toward the editorial sanctum.

And Keating, during these live days, was between 28 and 30. At 25 he was managing editor of the Times. As an editorial writer he was a marksman. His editorials hurt. They went below the skin. All of the big offenders got a jab with his pen. His enemies say his pen was poison. The rest know it was dipped in the truth.

HAS DIFFICULT TASK.

As representative of that section of Colorado, the south and east quarter of the State, no man in Congress has more various issues to handle. From the mining districts of Gilpin and Clerk Creek, the scenes of the earliest gold discoveries, to Cripple Creek, Leadville and the wonderful San Juan, eastward along the Arkansas Valley, a garden spot, Keating knows every foot of the ground. Cattle, fruit, sugar beets cantaloupes, alfalfa, gold, silver, lead, copper, a list too long to enumerate, these interests must be looked out for. The southern counties of his district have a population with a great percentage of people of Spanish birth and if you know the Spaniard, he, too, has some temperament.

The Third Congressional district on the west, in spots, rises to an altitude of 13,000 feet. On the east it drops to 400 feet. Nature filled the district so that the melting snow from the mountain tops would flow easily into the valleys. Water is the scarcest thing in Colorado, and the State prohibition, too.

The Arkansas runs west and east. Many of the irrigating ditches run east and west. To be Congressman from a district where water runs up hill and down hill, where mountain peaks go into the skies, where rivers run below the surface, where flowers bloom on one side of the hill and the other side is icebound the year round, where a stalk of corn sprouts in the surface beneath which is a gold mine, is some distinction.

The district is one of extremes. Extremes of nature and of people. Ed. Keating has met all of these conditions. He knows them, and the only objection to him can be this—that in a district where water is at a premium, he still persists in drinking only water.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest and most certain indigestion remedy in the whole world and besides it is harmless.

Millions of men and women now eat their favorite foods without fear—they know Pape's Diapepsin will save them from any stomach misery.

Please, for your sake, get a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store and put your stomach right. Don't keep on being miserable—life is too short—you may not here long, so make your stay agreeable. Eat what you like and digest it; enjoy it, without dread of rebellion in the stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin belongs in your home anyway. Should one of the family eat something which don't agree with them or in case of an attack of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis or stomach derangement at daytime or during the night, it is handy to give and is the quickest, surest relief known.—Advertisement.

CHARGE WOMAN USED KNIFE ON HER 'RIVAL'

Mrs. Lucy De Statio, thirty-two, of Elmwood street, Revere, was arraigned in the Chelsea District Court today, charged with assault with a knife upon Mrs. Mary Sacoco, twenty-two, also of Revere.

The latter is now at the Frost Hospital, Chelsea, suffering from five wounds which the police allege were inflicted by Mrs. De Statio. While her condition is regarded as serious, the hospital authorities today asserted that she will probably recover.

Captain George Devine asked a continuance until March 24, pending the outcome of Mrs. Sacoco's wounds, and the woman was held in $5,000.

The alleged stabbing occurred as the two women left a trolley car at Waite street, Revere, early last night. Jealousy is said to have prompted the alleged attack. Mrs. De Statio was arrested on the spot by Sergeant Blythe of the Revere police.

The two women were returning from their work in Boston. On the way out, it is alleged that the De Statio woman accused the other of keeping company with her husband. Mrs. Sacoco is said to have denied the allegation, and thus started a quarrel.

When the car reached Waite street both women alighted. As they did, it is alleged that Mrs. De Statio suddenly drew a short knife from her bosom. Before several bystanders could interfere it is claimed that she attacked the younger woman.

It is charged that she drove home five stabs. Two caught Mrs. Sacoco on the arm, one on the head, one on the left side and one on the left wrist.

Several men then seized Mrs. De Statio and dragged her away. Sergeant Blythe soon arrived and placed her under arrest.

Owing to the threatening aspects of a quickly-gathered crowd the officer was forced to draw his club to save his prisoner from possible harm.

Chorus Bride in Harvard Romance to Sue for $100,000

Mrs. Dorothy Gates Herrman, wife of former Harvard student, and who has had a guardian appointed for her in the New York Supreme Court. She accuses Herrman, Senior, of alienating her husband's affections.

Mrs. Lefty Louie Reported Aide to Banned Seer

A drive by the Cambridge police against clairvoyants, fortune tellers, seers and so on, who are ordered to quit that city by April 1, developed a report today, that Mrs. "Lefty Louie" Horowits of New York, widow of one of the executed gunmen in the Rosenthal murder in New York, has been working as one of two women assistants to "Sir Thomas Mozette" at No. 598 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge.

"Sir Thomas" has admitted in court that he is the world's greatest living clairvoyant. He employed a man doorkeeper in addition to the two women assistants. The woman reported to be Mrs. "Lefty Louie" escaped an interview with the police. "Sir Thomas" declared the woman was not Mrs. Horowitz.

"Sir Thamos" and "Professor Irving," the latter likewise claiming to be a master-clairvoyant, were instructed at a talk with Police Captain Hurley and District Attorney William J. Corcoran to leave Cambridge by April 1. Well dressed women, many of them said to come from Boston, are reported to have sought the aid of the seers.

Dorothy Gates Herrman, the nineteen-year-old chorus girl bride of Philip Herrman, eighteen, whom she secretly married when he was a student at Harvard, has succeeded in having a guardian appointed for her, in order that she may sue her father-in-law, James S. Herrman, a wealthy New York contractor. A New York dispatch today stated that the bride, who has been much in the limelight since her Harvard romance, will soon name the elder Herrman as defendant in a $100,000 damage action for the alleged alienation of her young husband's affections.

While young Herrman was a Harvard student last year he fell in love with Miss Gates, who was then playing in a Broadway show, and married her secretly in Jersey City. They lived together a few weeks and then separated.

SAYS SHE SMOKES.

Subsequently Mr. and Mrs. James S. Herrman sued to have the marriage annulled, alleging their son was under age at the time of the wedding, and did not have their consent. At the trial Herrman admitted that he had lived with his wife after the age of eighteen. Justice Gavegan declined to annul the marriage.

In her alienation suit the young wife alleges that her father-in-law was influential in having her husband desert her. She also intends to sue for support, she says.

Mrs. Herrman is a diminutive, blue-eyed girl of nineteen. She lives with Mrs. Ethel Lorraine Belmont, wife of young Raymond Belmont, at No. 251 West Fifty-first street, New York city. She was playing in "Watch Your Step," in January, 1915, when she met "Hit" in a Broadway restaurant. During the court proceedings in the case Mrs. Herrman testified:

Q.—You were a chorus girl? A.—I was not. Show girls are five feet six tall. I'm a pony, and ponies are hard to get.

Q.—You smoke and drink, Mrs. Herrman? A.—I smoke cigarettes—if they are the right brand. I drink highballs.

Q.—How many? A.—Never more than three. I know what some men have never learned—to take just enough and no more.

Q.—Tell us about your marriage. A.—Philip was very much in love with me. He was introduced to me by some of his friends at Harvard. He begged me to marry him at least sixty times. He finally told me he'd kill himself unless I married him. I did marry him to save his life and because I loved him.

SAYS FATHER KISSED HER.

Q.—Did his father visit you? A.—Yes. He warned me not to marry him—as his son was only a schoolboy. Then, after our marriage, he said he had no objection to me as a daughter-in-law. In fact, he kissed the bride. That's me.

Q.—Mr. Herrman kissed you? A.—He certainly did.

"No," young Herrman testified, "I didn't call on Dorothy four times after I was eighteen. It was only once—on June 5 last. She invited me to remain. Except on that occasion I never lived with her as man and wife after my eighteenth birthday."

Young Herrman told of taxi "hopping" with Miss Gates before their wedding. They visited many cafes in the bright light district, he said.

SAY SUNDAY USHER STOLE FROM PLATE

By International News Service.

Baltimore, Md., March 17.—Consternation was thrown into the Billy Sunday camp here today when it was learned that Lee R. Thompson, an usher at the Tabernacle, had been taken to police headquarters charged with stealing money from the collection plates. He was released, however as the Sunday organization said they did not care to prosecute him. The total attendance at the Tabernacle to date numbers 492,000 and the collections, $20,925.93. Mothers' day was celebrated at the Tabernacle this afternoon, Billy's sermon was on "Motherhood." Shop meetings, prayer meetings and meetings for boys and girls made up the Sunday program for today.

COX SAYS U. S. MUST PROTECT CITIZENS

That American citizens wherever they be should find protection under "Old Glory" was the burden of an address by Channing Cox, speaker of the House of Representatives, at the annual banquet and ladies' night of the Men's Club of the First Universalist Church, Somerville.

"The time has come when we are simply plain Americans—no Irish, German, French or Italian Americans—and if the challenge comes, I for one do not subscribe to the sentiment 'We are too proud to fight,'" said Speaker Cox.

SENATOR NELSON AT WORCESTER

United States Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota, a native of Norway, is to be the principal speaker at the annual dinner of the Swedish-American Republican Club of Massachusetts, at the Hotel Bancroft, Worcester, tomorrow evening. Governor McCall, Senator Weeks and Congressman Winslow are the other speakers.

CREHAN CABLES WORD TO REDMOND

Mark H. Crehan of the Redmond Branch of the United Irish League, has sent cablegrams to John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Parliamentary party and to Joseph Devlin, Mr. Redmond's associate, assuring them of the unqualified support of the Boston branch.

L. W. STOCKTON WITNESS IN B.A.A. CASE

Plymouth, March 17.—Lawrence W. Stockton, former vice-president of the Boston Athletic Association, was called to the stand today in Dr. Russell A. Richards' $20,000 suit against former President George B. Morison and nineteen other members of the governing board of the association, in which he charges his character and reputation were injured when he was expelled from the club.

Attorney J. J. Feeley, representing Richards, questioned Mr. Stockton. He inquired as to the meeting of March 17, 1914.

"The governing committee at that time could not furnish all desired infogmation to the investigating committee of seven. Is that not true?"

"I think they could not," was the reply.

Attorney Feeley took up the meeting of April 14, 1914, when the reports were presented by the investigating committe, Dr. Richards dissenting.

"I believe Dr. Richards was acting in good faith in his questions to the governing board," said Mr. Stockton.

Q.—Did the committee done anything to put into effect the suggestions offered by Dr. Richards, in his minority report, up to the time of his dismissal? A.—Nothing definite was done. Changes were considered.

Q.—You say the doctor was loud and offensive at that April meeting? A.—Yes.

Q.—What part of his report was offensive? A.—Certain sections, taken in connection with his manner.

Q.—Do you consider the expenditure of $25,000 for an addition to the clubhouse was judicious? A.—I certainly do.

Q.—Is it not possible that what you call the offensive conduct of the doctor was due to his eagerness? A.—It may have been.

Q.—You and some of your fellows were not satisfied with the affairs of the association? Is that correct? A.—Yes.

JESSE POMEROY, FAMOUS LIFER, STILL HOPEFUL OF FREEDOM

Jesse Pomeroy, the famous "lifer" at Charlestown State Prison, hopes to be set free some day, but at present he is saving all the money he can to hire a lawyer in hopes of obtaining greater prison privileges.

Pomeroy's hopes became known today through an informal account given by members of the legislative Committee on Public Institutions of their inspection visit to the prison. When the committeemen were brought before Pomeroy's cell one of the members asked Pomeroy if he thought the committee could do anything for him. The life-prisoner replied:

"Yes, I wish you would use your good offices to get further privileges for me."

Representative Carman of Springfield asked him:

"What are your hopes for the future?"

"I hope eventually," said Pomeroy, "to have my full liberty. At present I am saving up what little money comes to me for a lawyer to get greater privileges for me here."

SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

MISS AMES IS WELL GOWNED

COPLEY SOCIETY HAS DANCE TONIGHT

MISS ELISE AMES.

Since her debut, five years ago, she has taken part in many smart events. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Ames, 2d, of Commonwealth avenue.

One of the best gowned of the younger Boston smart set is Miss Elise Ames, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Aames, 2d, of Commonwealth avenue. Miss Ames' appearance at different society events has invariably caused much favorable comment because of the unusual cleverness apparent in her selection of costumes.

She is a member of the Vincent Club and made her social debut in 1911. Since then she has been a leader in the smart set. She is interested in charity and has more than the usual number of sociological interests.

o o o

The second in the series of subscription dances for the benefit of the Copley Society comes tonight in Copley Hall. Miss C. E. Maxwell and Miss Helen McKay are in charge and a large and brilliant attendance is expected. The first was given on Shrove Tuesday and the popularity of these studio dances was equal to last year when they won such marked favor. March 27 is the date announced for the last one.

o o o

Mrs. A. Winsor, Mrs. J. Arnold Lowell, Mrs. Chandler Hovey, Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Mrs. A. H. Higginson, Mrs. Randolph Tucker are the patronesses for the dance to be given at the Chestnut Hill Club tonight.

The affair is in aid of the American ambulance corps in France.

o o o

Edward Howard Griggs will be heard tonight in Jordan Hall in the first of his two new lectures dealing with the present war crisis. His subject will be "The World War and Ethics."

o o o

At the social meeting of the Players' League today, in the Toy ballroom, many members of the theatrical profession were guests. An attractive program was given, and later dancing and refreshments were enjoyed.

o o o

Mrs. S. Louise Patterson of Cleveland, O., will give a lecture tonight under the auspices of the Women's City Club in Pilgrim Hall.

o o o

Mrs. Richards M. Bradley of the Special Aid Society, gave a talk upon the aims and purposes of the organization today at the home of Mrs. F. I. Sears in Webster.

A free public talk upon the subject: "Law Every Woman Ought to Know," was given at the rooms of the Special Aid Society, No. 601 Boylston street, today, by Miss Edith M. Haines.

PATRICK HALLINAN OF NATICK DEAD

Patrick F. Hallinan, superintendent of the Natick Sewer Department, former chairman of Selectmen, and prominent in the Knights of Columbus and the A. O. H., is dead at his home on Elliott street today after several weeks of poor health. He was at his office all day yesterday, was taken sick in the night and died before the physician arrived. He is survived by a widow and four children.

WEYMOUTH WOMAN SEEKS A DIVORCE

Mrs. Annie Zeoli today filed in the Dedham Court a divorce petition, accusing Frank Zeoli of East Weymouth of habits of intoxication and non-support, and asking the right to attach his property for $5,000.

TURKS AND GERMANS IN ROW DURING TRIP

London, March 17.—A sanguinary conflict took place between members of the Turco-German mission which went to Asia Minor to study the defences in Angora, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Athens.

TEMPLE COURSE LAST CONCERT IS BRILLIANT

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

A brilliant concert brought the regular season of the Tremont Temple Course to a close last evening. The artists were Mme. Evelyn Scotney, soprano, George Dostal, tenor, and Howard White, basso. Herbert Leiler was the accompanist.

There was the customary multitude which attends these popular concerts, and there were so many encores that the affair wasn't over until 11.

Mme. Scotney was in better voice than at her first Temple concert some months ago. Her high voice was singularly pure and bell like, and her middle register rich and round.

She sang the waltz song from Romeo and Juliet, a Strauss Barcarole and Debussey's "Fantouches," as well as groups of ballads. Her art was well displayed by the classic group, and it is worthy of much consideration.

Dostal is of Bohemian extraction. He studied opera abroad and sings Polish as readily as English. He also uses an Irish brogue effectively. His high voice is very remarkable. He took high D flat with ease and he did astonishing stunts in this register. But his middle tones are thin pinched and ordinary, and his lower register puny.

With a more carefully selected list of songs his success might have been sensational.

Howard White is gaining as a baritone every day. His voice is now flexible and very expressive and he sings with much intelligence. Mr. Leiler accompanied acceptably.

Charges Desertion.

Howard F. Shaw of Needham filed a divorce suit in Dedham today charging Millie E. Shaw deserted him in 1912.

TELLS IT TO THE PLANT JUICE MAN

Mrs. Margaret Hill of No. 110 Putnam St. Says His Medicine Helped Her.

To all who suffer with the symptoms of a deranged stomach, liver and kidney trouble and rheumatism, immediate relief is at hand in the use of the new herbal preparation, Plant Juice.

MRS. MARGARET HILL.

Nothing that science has put forth from the laboratory of Nature has so quickly sprung into world-wide fame and prominence as has this preparation. Wherever introduced it has taken immediate hold on the public, and brought forth words of praise from people in all stations of life. It does all that is claimed for it and more, as is verified by the statements of people living in your home city. Possibly your next-door neighbor has proved that this wonderful remedy has been remarkably successful as a germ-destroyer and a builder-up of wasted organs.

For instance, the signed statement of Mrs. Margaret Hill of No. 110 Putnam street, who has lived in this city for the past 25 years and has hosts of friends, gave the following:

"I have been troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia for the past five or six years. My food fermented in my stomach and caused gas to form, and I was all bloated. I had headaches, was very dizzy and had pains all through my body, so that I could not sleep at night. In fact, I was in a completely run-down condition and was always so tired that I could hardly get about to do my work. All the medicines and treatments I had taken failed to relieve me, and when a friend recommended me to take Plant Juice I was very skeptical indeed of it ever helping me. However, I got a bottle and to my great surprise the first dose gave me some relief. I have since continued its use and it has put my stomach in fine condition. I can eat anything I want and digest it, sleep well at night; it has cleared my complexion up beautifully, and all my friends are asking me what has made the change. I tell them Plant Juice."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton Co.'s Store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

Old Prescription for Weak Kidneys

A medicinal preparation like Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, that has real curative value, almost sells itself. Like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is a physician's prescription. It has been tested for years and has brought results to countless numbers who have suffered.

The success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfils almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

Do not suffer. Get a bottle of Swamp-Root from any druggist now. Start treatment today.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention the Boston Daily American.—Advertisement.

AURORA BOREALIS SEEN OVER BOSTON

As a sort of aftermath to the recent snow storm, the aurora borealis gave Greater Boston the most brilliant sky illumination seen here in years. The spectacle was viewed by thousands of admirers.

AGED BLIN[illegible]N FAVORED BY COURT

Maisey Wasloski, sixty-five and nearly blind, of No. 296 Dorchester street, South Boston, appeared in the South Boston District Court today on the charge of non-support. When Associate Justice William J. Day learned that the feeble old man had four children all working, he placed the case on file and ordered Mrs. Wasloski to take her husband home. The woman stepped into the dock and led the old man out of the court-room.

The Team That Lets Its Interest Flag in the Spring Has No Interest in the Flag in the Fall

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

Reulbach Enters Camp

Rico Considered a Find

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

MIAMI, Fla., March 17.—"Just before we opened our training season," remarked Manager Stallings to the writer this morning, "I was considerably upset over the catching department of our club. Elsewhere I felt confident we had the necessary strength.

"I wondered whether or not we would be able to get by in the event of our failing to acquire the services of another experienced big league man.

"Today you can tell the 'fans' in Boston I feel well satisfied with the prospects at hand. In the four men at present making up the catching staff we have some wonderful material. It now looks as if Hank Gowdy is to have another big season such as that of 1914. If that be the case there's nothing to it but success for the club.

"Tragressor and Blackburn are catchers with considerable experience, and, though neither of them has had any vast amount of work in big league circles, both showed well in leagues of lower classification.

RICO MAKING A HIT.

"Young Rico looks like the best young proposition I ever have had. I say that after recalling Jimmy Archer and Wally Schang are a pair I once owned and whom some experts claim I made.

"Of course we won't pass up the chance of getting another experienced man to help Hank, but even if we don't I'm satisfied. Tell my friends that I am satisfied with the team as a whole and feel confident the people of Boston will have something to talk about next Fall when the close of the season arrives."

Yesterday the Braves trounced a team of fresh youngsters representing this city to the tune of 20-1 in seven innings. If "freshness" made baseball players and champions, Miami would be the perpetual holders of the world's title.

The town pets went after the Braves in the first inning with a gift run lead. They might have escaped the bad beating had they remained calm with that success.

They did not, however, and the result was that the wrecking crew went after them, and what it did was well worth doing. When Umpire Cleary called time in the seventh all hands were immediately pleased, for it was cold on the field and anything but comfortable for those sitting in the stands. At that, the thermometer was over fifty and close to sixty all the while.

REULBACH JOINS SQUAD.

Ed Reulbach was strenuously at work this morning and, though he reported in pretty fine condition, hopes to get down even lower before the team leaves here.

Reulbach showed up yesterday morning, after the club went to the park, and in the afternoon was in uniform. He states that he had been working in a gymnasium in Brooklyn and managed to reduce about twenty pounds.

The regular morning workout was in order, with conditions a trifle different from those which prevailed yesterday. It was still cool but withal a trifle warmer. The indications are the mercury will continue climbing today and tomorrow. The wind, which has been blowing at about the rate of sixteen miles an hour, gives evidence of dropping to a point nearer normal.

No word has been received from President Haughton up to the time the club left for practice this morning, and the whole party is in the dark as regards the hour of his arrival. He may drop in today and then again may not arrive until next week. Just about two more weeks are left to be spent in this city and in that time the club should be able to get into wonderful shape.

Gardner and Jack Barry Off to Spa; Tris Out of Fold

THE second squad of Red Sox left for the Hot Springs, Ark., training camp this morning. Larry Gardner and Jack Barry were the players chaperoned by Secretary Hiley. Gainor, Scott, Shorten and McNally are to be picked up in St. Louis tomorrow evening, while Lewis and Hooper are ed route direct to the Spa from California.

This accounts for all but Speaker, as Hoblitzell, Janvrin and Henriksen are already at the camp.

Tris claims he will not stand for the "gash" in salary, a slice of practically half the money he has drawn the last two seasons.

Speaker is at his home at Hubbard City, Tex., and declared today to an AMERICAN interviewer that matters stood just as they have been standing all Winter and has no idea at all when he will come to terms and report to Manager Carrigan.

VAUGHN NEW PILOT YALE VARSITY NINE

By International News Service.

New Haven, Ct., March 17.—Roland Virgil Vaughn of Haverhill, Mass., was today elected captain of the Yale nine, succeeding Arthur Milburn, who resigned at the recommendation of the special committee, which felt that a captain who ran the team from the bench was undesirable. Vaughn has been rightfielder for two seasons. He prepared for Yale at Exeter.

SOX CHANGE PHYSICIANS.

Dr. John D. McIntosh of Rockland has been appointed the Red Sox's physician for the coming season by President Lannin. This is a position Dr. Alfred A. Cliff has filled the past four years.

B. L. CAPTAIN SET DOWN.

Robert Maloney, Boston Latin's track captain, has resigned and report has it he has had trouble with the faculty. It is announced Maloney will not be permitted to compete in the regimental meet.

MURPHY WINS AT B.M.A.A.

South Boston Boy Jabs Way to Victory Over Walter Mohr—Semi-Windup a Scream.

EDDIE MURPHY, the South Boston welterweight, gave Walter Mohr of Brooklyn quite an artistic drubbing in their 12-round fracas at the B. M. A. A., Hibernian Hall, Roxbury, last night. The toll was six rounds for Murphy and three for Mohr, with the remaining three even. It was a plenty decisive enough trimming and not even Mohr's backers objected when Referee Conley decided in favor of the local entrant.

Murphy jabbed his way to a victory. When allied with the lightweights, Eddie owned a left jab that was lightning fast. Last night he had it in prime working order and deftly ●zed it into Mohr's phiz from first to last.

The House of Bennett was forced to ring up the curtain on a new night, owing to prior bookings at the hall. Heretofore it has been operating on Fridays and that will continue to be its night. The switch hurt business. Instead of the usual packed house, there was room galore. The hall was scarcely half-filled and this caused Mohr to chant that old ditty, "I must raise the ante." Hence, a delay of fully forty-five minutes in starting the windup. More trouble for the club was Johnny Emery's refusal to keep his date with Charley Sheppard in the semi-windup.

Andy Morris of Lynn was dug up and sent against Sheppard. He did his best, but not wanting to miss the big parade today, hopped over the ropes at the end of the third round.

Johnny Donovan, the speedy South Boston featherweight, kept on his great winning streak and gained Conley's award in his busy six-round number with Tommy Doyle of Lowell.

DIARY OF JESS WILLARD HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION

New York, Friday, March 17.

THERE was quite a change in the atmosphere when I rolled out of bed shortly after 6 o'clock, for the storm of the past few days had passed. That meant that I could start off on my seventeenth day of training without being held in restraint by the weather.

All hands were up as early as 1, and before 7 o'clock we donned heavy clothing and were out for a jaunt. The cold, pure air acted as a tonic. We did not dare to break out into a jog, for the streets and road were too treacherous to take the slightest chance.

Instead, we took a good, long walk and about 8 o'clock came back to the hotel. Though we were eager to rush to the dining room, that treat had to be held back until I went through a little work in my room.

As soon as I stripped off the road clothes, I donned a gym suit and went through the bending down, pulley and shadow sparring exercises for fifteen minutes.

Jess Goes Through Usual Morning Program.

Then the boys gave me a rubdown and I flopped into the bath. As soon as I could slip into regular clothes I headed the mob and we charged the dining room in a solid phalanx. I restricted myself to some fried chicken, with vegetables and milk. I left the table still feeling rather empty.

The meal over, I lounged around the lobby for nearly an hour. All hands then retired to our quarters, and for over an hour we went through the program of practicing the blows I intend to use in my coming encounter with Moran.

Without disclosing any secret I will say that my right uppercut, which is one of my best wallops, is working very well and will surely give a good account of itself a week from Saturday. The lessons being over I laid down for an hour and read the papers.

It didn't take the morning long to slip by and shortly after 1 o'clock we started for the Pioneer Club. Not being in a hurry to get to work, I chatted with the mob and didn't begin work until close to 3 o'clock.

Boxes Nine Rounds; Some Over Limit.

For five minutes I dallied with the pulleys to limber up my muscles. Then I began my boxing. I boxed for nine rounds with four partners and some of the rounds were nearer four minutes than three.

"Whitey" Allen joined the corps of sparring partners, as he is to fight tomorrow night, and this gave him a chance to get a good workout.

Jack Hemple was the first one to face me and he slipped a heavy mask over his face. This gave me a chance to let the blows fly without doing much damage. Two fast rounds with Hemple and then Allen took up the battle.

"Whitey" was full of "pep" and didn't hesitate to let fly from every angle and with all his power behind the blows. He was glad when the finish came, and George Rodel climbed into the ring.

The Boer was just as persistent and anxious as ever and kept swinging with his right to see if he could earn the $25 Tom Jones offered to any one that would make me sit down. Rodel clinched repeatedly and roughed me around. This is one of the hardest things in boxing and does a man a world of good.

Monahan Gives Champion Hot Workout.

Monahan then came in, and, believe me, Walter was there to fight. He tried any number of times to leap over and crash his right against my chin. Every time Walter hopped I forestalled him with a straight left. That only seemed to rile him and he kept swinging and stabbing away for further orders.

The second round was so exciting, and Jones enjoyed it so thoroughly he allowed the mill to go over four minutes. This workout consumed more time than the bout with Moran will if it lingers the full distance.

In actual boxing I spent over thirty-two minutes and ended feeling better than when I started. That is proof that there is nothing wrong with my condition. I could go in and fight any man in the world today and would not want to be in better condition than now. It took me nearly three weeks to work around to this shape and all I need to do is to keep on edge.

Foster on Deck at Spa

Gregg Set for Big Year

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 17.—To give a variation to the monotony of the work, Manager Bill Carrigan let the boys choose up sides and play a few innings yesterday.

It meant nothing, for the boys were all out of their positions, save those who did the pitching and catching, but it gave them a chance to shout and josh and it came also as a lifesaver to the newspapermen who have been trying to get material enough for a few lines from watching the same old thing happen day after day.

Someone wrote a book entitled "Twice Told Tales." The boys sending stuff to Boston from here have had to draw upon their imagination to a great extent for whatever has been sent. There is a whole lot of real good to a trip of this kind for the pitchers and catchers, as has been pointed out, but it is a tiresome thing to try to dig from the mass anything that looks like good "dope" for the fans.

LIKE HAMLET SANS DANE.

A training trip with only such men as are here working is a good deal like the play of "Hamlet," with old "Ham" cut out, or a poker game played for matches. It is interesting, but not in the least thrilling after the first three days. "Six Told Tales" is more like it.

However, there is hope in the fact that the days are slipping away, and the full squad will be here Sunday, barring accidents. Then there will be something to say and something like an idea can be gained of what is to come.

The camp has been a bit cold for the past two days, but the sun is hot and the wind mild, so that it has helped, rather than retarded, the work of the twirlers.

The boss of the World's Champions now has his full list of pitchers and catchers in camp with the arrival of George Foster. The crack little pitcher reports conditions at home such as would not cause him to worry, and he looks fit and ready to take hold with the others. He has lived in the open most of the Winter, and is as hard as nails.

THE MERRY OLD YELLS.

Some day somebody is going to invent a new list of diamond yells for the ball players. In the meantime the old familiar ones ring clear, long and loud across the Majestic Park diamond, such as "atta boy," "little pep," "that gets him, "nice getting," and the like. They are music to the ear of the fan and time honored by the fraternity.

The mornings being a little cool, Carrigan has delayed taking the men to the park until about 11 o'clock, and extends their stay there until about 1:20 p. m. Then comes the long hike over the hils, which have done a whole lot toward getting the boys down to where they look pretty good.

Each twirler on the staff had a good session pitching to the batter yesterday. Pennock led off, with Shore showing some of that old stuff of his. Leonard is taking his time, but looks to be coming around nicely, as is Ruth.

Mays has almost perfect control, with that deceptive underhand delivery of his. McHale, Gregg, Anderson, McCabe and Bader are all working without any hitches. Gregg had so much stuff that Carrigan called him out and caught him for a while so as to look him over good.

NATIVES STRONG FOR RUTH.

The last thing the men have is a long bunting practice. They take to it with a will, and Ruth is the hero of the local fans, who stick to watch him go down after those which take so much out of a man. "Babe" makes a lot of fun over his being a bit stiff just now.

The fielding practice so far consists of Thomas at first, Agnew at second, Janvrin at short and Hoblitzell at third. This quartet of players can make as much noise as a good-sized boiler shop in full blast. Leonard is the boy who hits it to them, with Cady doing the catching.

The Pirates got in today, coming from their camp at Dawson Springs, Ky., on account of the snow. In the early morning hours here one could picture himself in a temperature fit for ice skating. It does not, however, take the sun long to warm up, so that it is only when the players are in bed, or after the sun goes down, that it has been very cold.

HILMER JOHNSON IS TO WRESTLE LEWIS

Hilmer Johnson, the Swedish heavyweight wrestler, has been selected to meet "Strangler" Lewis in one of the four matches next Wednesday night in Mechanics Building. Johnson has just returned East after a successful Coast trip.

With Johnson's acceptance the card is complete, as follows: Lewis vs. Johnson, Americus vs. Darro, Zbyszko vs. Hevumpaa and Lemie vs. Leavitt. All matches will be at catch-as-catch-can style, and to a finish.

BARRY AND HART PICKED.

Dan Barry of Boston and Bob Hart of Lowell have been engaged by President Lannin to umpire the Red Sox's games with Harvard and Boston College, at Fenway Park, April 10 and 11, respectively. Barry has run a lot of the big college games of late seasons, while Hart, a veteran minor league official, has signed with the International League for the coming season.

RING RESULTS

Cleveland, March 17.—Johnny Griffiths, the Akron lightweight, knocked out Earl Fisher of Cincinnati in the seventh round at the Moose Club.

Reading, Pa., March 17.—Johnny Ertle of St. Paul won the decision over Alf Mansfield, formerly of England but now of Reading, in a six-round bout. In the last round Ertle tried his best for a knockout. He drove Mansfield all over the ring with lefts and rights to body and jaw.

Frank Moran Is Ready

Boosts Boxing as Sport

New York, March 17.—Frank Moran is gaining in supporters and today's official price was 10 to 8 on Willard to win the popular decision. Twenty-four hours ago the price was 10 to 7.

By FRANK MORAN.

Challenger for the World's Heavyweight Title.

NEW YORK, March 17.—A young fellow going to college quite often permits his mind to wander from his studies. Similarly I permit my mind to wander from that which to me just now is as important as the advantage of a college education to a young fellow.

I tried to concentrate on my ambition to win the heavyweight title yesterday morning during my five-mile run with Willie Lewis, my trainer, and failed. The invigorating effects of the early morning air wouldn't permit me to.

My mind turned to things other than the big match. Lewis, I imagine, devoted his energy to keeping up with me, and had very little to say. I thought of the thousands of fellows in the boxing game, all struggling for the goal which only one can attain and which I have within my reach.

MORAN DEFENDS BOXING.

I thought of the fellows who box only often enough to keep from starving and thought of those who would eat regularly if they were engaged more often—the fellows who go through more hardships than a fellow in any other profession could endure to realize a dream.

And yet there are those who say that boxing isn't the sport it should be. Say, a stiff blow to the point of the jaw does more character-building than a thousand bankruptcy cases or business reverses.

And the training a boxer does has more effect upon him than the stiffest "exam" has on a college student.

CLAIMS HE'S READY NOW.

My road work was the only thing I did in preparation for the big match. When I got back to Dal Hawkins' I took a bath, was rubbed down and breakfasted.

I intend to go out for another run today, box about five or six rounds and go through a stiff session in the gymnasium. I shall aim from now on to develop my speed. My wind is perfect and I feel stronger and better than I ever did and am faster than I ever was.

But I want to acquire still more speed. A fraction of a second in the ring the night of March 25 may mean the championship to me, and I do not intend to let any opportunities pass by.

SEC. LANSING ON LINKS.

Pinehurst, N. C., March 17.—Secretary of State Lansing and Donald Ross, the professional, played an 18-hole golf match on the championship course here yesterday. Mr. Lansing played an excellent game, considering that he has had little or no opportunity to indulge in golf this Winter.

TIGER STAR BANISHED.

William H. Deyo, Princeton's star pitcher, has been found guilty of playing "Summer baseball, and dropped from the 'Tigers' squad. Among his triumphs the past two seasons were three victories over Yale.

M'ARTHUR NAMED PILOT.

Robert McArthur is Rindge Tech's new swimming captain.

Three-Piece Suit to Order $8.75

My Providence Address, 167 Westminster St.

The increase in the cost of goods and the anticipation that has already been realized, caused me some two months ago to load up with woolens that are now commencing to come in. My business is run positively on quick turn-overs. In order to make the prices that I do in the newspapers, I must turn my stock two or three times a month. The minute there is a letup I am overloaded.

Fifteen days of snow in Boston and throughout the country in my various stores, finds me loaded to the gills with woolens. I want every man who reads this ad to know one thing: I never pretend to sell anything at a loss. There is a slight profit on every sale that I make, and when I tell you, today, that inside my Boston store, 277 Washington St., there is a great big piece of Blue Serge bearing the label, "Three-Piece Suit to Order $8.75," and I guarantee this color, absolutely all wool, you can find the goods there. The price will be as quoted in my advertisement. The goods will be all wool, and if the color changes you are permitted to bring the suit back any time within the life of the garment.

Patterns will be designed by the highest priced designers of custom clothing in the country. Suit will be made to fit or new suit made, and every Blue Serge suit that I send out at this season I want my salesman to assure the customer that he cannot have this suit made in Boston within twice the price that I charge for it.

I will also have fifty styles of Tweeds, Cheviots, Cassimeres and Woolen suitings that bear the tag, "Suit to Order, $8.75."

This inducement is offered simply to force business. Ten days from today we have normal trade for Easter, and, believe me, $8.75 is a figure that no man can produce a suit of clothes for in the near future under any conditions, as the woolens I am showing I could not buy today to produce within 50% of what I am now charging you. Nemo NEWS
Devoted to the HEALTH COMFORT and BEAUTY ••• of WOMEN •••

You Say This?

THOUSANDS of women who read this soliloquy will recognize it as their own:

"Yes, I came to the Nemo because I have found a Nemo model that fits, though it were made for me, and because the Nemo is R.U.A. corset—never humanly or freakish.

"Of course Nemo fashionline changes with the fashions but the Nemo hygienic features never change—except when they're improved. I always know just what corset-service I am getting.

"Besides, I have found that the Nemo Corset will wear twice as long as any other."

There is a Nemo model for every type of figure, short or tall; stout, thin or medium. Here is a group of popular Nemo Corsets for stout women of three distinct types:

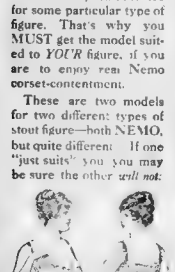

$3.00

No. 318 is for the short stout woman, heavy abdomen; No. 319 is for the stout woman of medium height, flesh evenly distributed and No. 321 is for taller slim figures. At Egc Shene models that fit without alteration $3.00.

Special Stout Models

Each Nemo Corset performs some specific service for some particular type of figure. That's why you MUST get the model suited to YOUR figure, if you are to enjoy real Nemo corset-contentment.

These are two models for two different types of stout figure—both NEMO, but quite different. If one "just suits" you you may be sure the other will not:

The Struggles of a Wife

Myra Finds It Is Not So Easy to Write Stories as She Had Imagined

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER VIII.

IT took Myra Webb the best part of a week to get over the shock of Mr. Norton's refusal. Yet it was not entirely the fact that the publication had declined to accept her story that caused her such bitter disappointment. She had written it with the full conviction that it was the best thing she had ever done, and when it had been returned she had begun to suspect that it was not quite as good as she had thought it was.

She should have been glad, for the sake of her self-respect, if for no other reason, that Mr. Norton had refused to accept it, but she was not glad. She was bitterly disappointed, and she was also very much puzzled. She had thought that she knew how to write a story, and she had supposed that she had written a good one, but Mr. Norton had said that it was not, and Myra was forced to believe that he knew what he was talking about. She had always been accustomed to defer to his judgment in matters of literature, and she had no reason to suppose that he was not as competent to pass upon a story as he was to pass upon a poem or an essay.

Myra Webb was a young woman who had been left a widow with a little daughter to support. Her husband had been a clerk in a wholesale grocery house, and his salary had been so small that he had been able to save only a few hundred dollars out of it. Myra had been left with this money and with the furniture of the little flat in which they had lived, and she had been forced to look about her for some means of earning a livelihood. She had a pretty voice and a pretty face, and she had thought that she could go on the stage, but her mother-in-law, who had come to live with her, had opposed this plan with all her might, and Myra had finally given it up. She had then decided to write stories, and she had begun to write them in the evenings after the child had gone to bed. She had had no training for this work, but she had had a vivid imagination and a fluent pen, and she had thought that she could succeed as well as other people who had begun in the same way. She had read many stories by writers who had begun in this way, and she had felt sure that she could do as well as they had done.

She had written her first story in a week, and she had then copied it carefully and had sent it to the editor of a popular magazine. She had waited for his decision with the most intense eagerness, and when it came she had been overwhelmed with disappointment and chagrin. She had not dared to show the letter to her mother-in-law, who had been very much opposed to her writing stories, and she had not mentioned the matter to her friends. She had simply put the manuscript away in a drawer of her desk, and she had tried to forget that she had ever written it.

MYRA EXPLAINS TO THE GIRL

When the maid came to answer the door after Myra had rung the bell for the third time, she found the girl sitting at the table in the dining-room, with her head resting on her arms, crying bitterly. The maid stamped her foot impatiently at this, but it did not stop the child's sobs, and she addressed it angrily:

"At the end of another week I'll be back to help you pack up and start for the poor-house, when it shall come. Will you stop crying?"

The child looked up at her, and Myra saw that her face was wet with tears.

"I'm sorry," she said, "but I can't help it. I've got to cry. I've got to cry because I've got to tell mother that I've lost her place, and I don't know how I'm going to tell her. She'll be so disappointed, and she'll feel so badly. She was so glad to get it for me, and I've lost it in a week. I'm sorry, but I can't help it."

"Lost it!" exclaimed the maid. "Why, what do you mean? Has your mother been discharged?"

"Yes," said the child, "and it's all my fault. I've been careless, and I've broken a lot of things, and I've been impertinent to Mrs. Manx, and she says she won't keep me another day. I'm sorry, but I can't help it. I've got to cry."

"Well, I'll be hanged!" exclaimed the maid. "Mrs. Manx has been talking about discharging your mother for the last month, and I've been begging her not to do it, because I knew it would break your mother's heart to lose her place. I've been trying to keep her from finding out that Mrs. Manx was going to get rid of her, and I've been trying to keep you from finding it out, because I knew you'd tell her. Now you've gone and told her yourself, and I'm glad of it. I'm glad of it, because I'm sick and tired of Mrs. Manx, and I'm glad to get rid of her, and I'm glad to get rid of you, and I'm glad to get rid of your mother. I'm sick and tired of the whole lot of you, and I'm glad to get rid of you all. ERNST LETTER TO BERTLING HITS ALLIES

Boston people are following with much interest the publication of correspondence of Dr. Karl Oskar Bertling, a German propagandist whose government has been attempting to obtain a safe conduct for him.

Dr. Bertling is well known here, being a Harvard graduate, with a degree of A. M., which he received in 1901. He has also taught school at Newport, R. I., it is said, and spent many Summers at Gloucester.

At the instance of former Brigadier General William A. Pew of Gloucester he addressed a commandery of Spanish War veterans, of which General Pew was president, on the efficiency of the German army.

Since the outbreak of the war he has been in frequent communication with C. W. Ernst of Newton Centre, whose letters have been found in his correspondence. Mr. Ernst, although born in Germany, has lived in the United States fifty-two years. He was secretary to Mayor Hart in 1889 and again from 1908 to 1904, and has been active in Republican politics in Massachusetts.

ERNST'S LETTER.

Under date of December 20, 1914, Mr. Ernst wrote Dr. Bertling a letter marked "confidential," which is in part as follows.

My Dear and Honored Friend—Is it prudent to defend the German cause against the injustice of such people as C. W. Eliot and other Americans who consider themselves aristocratic and important? One should be careful not to look upon the upper ten thousand as the American people.

The feeling of men like Eliot, C. F. Adams, etc., is quite easily understood. German they know not. They understand neither Luther nor Kant, nor the history of Germany. By unnecessary courtesy Germans have increased and encouraged the presumption and the vanity of the Anglo-Saxons. Instead of conciliating such minds one should ridicule them.

A German should not forget that Germany needs no excuses—qui excusat accusat—a German should be haughty, proud and self-contained.

Where people ask for explanations one should give them as much as they can understand, which won't be much. If people do not accept the truth, then one should turn one's back on them and leave them to the fate of Sodom and Gomorrah.

"MILITARISM BORN HERE."

It is love lost to remind grateful professors of right and fair play, of decency and truth. The Anglo-Saxon will have neither truth nor right, he will only have the highest and the best he wants and better, and he himself will not fight for his money power. He hires mercenaries—yellow, red, white and black—in order to protect his money power and to increase it.

If America does not understand that, I cannot help America. I can only regret that America does not grasp how much it has at stake. As soon as we have ships and trade England will attack us in the east, Japan in the west, and then we shall be annihilated, and we shall compare as we did in 1812 and 1861.

Militarism? One has forgotten that universal military service originated in America. It existed in Massachusetts until the end of the revolution. We have the documentary history of Massachusetts and her universal military service from 1630 to 1789.

SAVE CHILDREN AT SALEM FIRE

Salem, March 17—Sergeant Duffy and Patrolman Callahan of the police department, early today rescued a number of women and children when fire broke out in the three-story wooden house, No. 4 High street.

The policemen raised ladders to windows and carried to the street many of the women and children who constituted the majority of the twenty occupants of the house.

The fire started from some unknown cause in the rear of the building. It was discovered by Antonio Minnigelle, the owner, who with his wife and five children occupies the top floor. His daughter and her husband, Paul Dario, live with them. The second floor is occupied by Sante Tomasso, his wife and six children, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Janejanni live on the ground floor. The majority were forced to leave the house in their night clothing. The police estimate the loss at $1,000.

In Our Wonderful World

A WHILE ago a grocer attributed his failure to the damage done to his stock by rats.

The damage caused by rats is frequently noted to be most extraordinary. A piece of lead waterpipe, twenty-five inches long, was found eaten its entire length. It was discovered that the rats had gnawed through the lead inch by inch in order to get water.

Upon wharves and in old houses rats are frequently responsible for damage. Should rats infest a granary the ruin which follows is always most difficult to arrest.

A few years ago the sewers of Paris were found to be unsound, and the water, percolating through, caused displacements and loss of life and property. A theory was then advanced that the rats had contributed to their unsound state. The authorities in Paris pay a price for all rats caught in the sewers, and rat-catching is a profession fully recognized.

Farmers in the country all know that rats will get chickens and that they frequently steal eggs.

"The Island of Black Cats" is a name applied to Chatham Island in the Pacific Ocean, about 736 miles west of the coast of Ecuador. It is overrun with black cats; indeed, cats of no other color are seen there. These animals live in the crevices of the lava foundation near the coast, and subsist by catching fish and crabs, instead of rats and mice. Other animals found on this island are horses, cattle, dogs, goats and chickens, all of which are perfectly wild.

Many authorities have described the Southern Hemisphere as only slightly colder than the Northern, but Dr. G. C. Simpson, the British meteorologist, has recently declared that the Southern Hemisphere is much colder, and has explained why. The air is not warmed by the passage of the sun's rays through it, but by contact with the warm ground beneath. In the Northern Hemisphere there are large masses of land to absorb the sun's energy and give heat to the atmosphere, while in the Southern the surface is mainly water. The whole mass of land within the Antarctic is permanently covered with ice, which is practically a perfect reflector, and thus returns to space most of the solar energy that falls upon it. Dr. Simpson thinks the fact that "five million square miles of the earth's surface in the Southern Hemisphere reflect into space a large part of the energy received from the sun" is one of the chief reasons for the difference in temperature between the two hemispheres.

Devoted to the HEALTH, COMFORT and BEAUTY of WOMEN

You Say This?

THOUSANDS of women who read this soliloquy will recognize it as their own:

"Yes, I cling to the Nemo because I have found a Nemo model that fits as though it were made for me, and because the Nemo is a REAL corset —never faddish or freaky

"Of course Nemo fashion-lines change with the fashions; but the Nemo hygienic features never change—except when they're improved; always know just what corset-service I am getting

"Besides, I have found that the Nemo Corset will wear twice as long as any other"

There is a Nemo model for every type of figure, short or tall; stout, thin or medium. Here is a group of popular Nemo Corsets for stout women of three distinct types:

No. 318 is for the short stout woman, heavy abdomen; No. 319 is for the stout woman of medium height, flesh evenly distributed and No. 320 is for taller stout figures. All Ego-Shape models, that fit without alteration—$3.00.

Special Stout Models

Each Nemo Corset performs some specific service for some particular type of figure. That's why you MUST get the model suited to YOUR figure, if you are to enjoy real Nemo corset-contentment.

These are two models for two different types of stout figure—both NEMO, but quite different. If one "just suits" you, you may be sure the other will not:

403 For women with full abdomen, and much flesh evenly distributed. Nemo Relief Bands take up, support and reduce the abdomen at once and permanently. $4.00

No. 402 is a similar model, for short, stocky figures; and No. 405 is for tall, stately stout women—$4.00.

506 For women with much flesh, rather soft; full back and shoulders, incurved back, heavy thighs and buttocks. The elastic gores and bands comfortably persuade the flesh into even, shapely lines. A very popular model. $5.00

No. 508 is a similar model for taller figures of same type—$5.00.

There is a Nemo model made just for YOU.

The Mystery of a Yawn

YAWNING is a peculiar act, and one that has never yet been properly accounted for. It is not by any means a sign of fatigue only, although it is sometimes produced by over exertion.

But an attack of yawning comes on much more quickly if one is intensely bored, and certainly a stuffy atmosphere tends to produce it. It is also noticeable that when one has gone considerably past one's usual meal-time the tendency to yawn frequently becomes irresistible. A very peculiar feature of this complaint is its infectiousness; one person can easily set half a dozen all yawning in turn.

When present in a very marked extent it is supposed to be the outcome of anaemia, indigestion, or some other complaint.

The Struggles of a Wife

Myra Finds It Is Not So Easy to Write Stories as She Had Imagined

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water.

CHAPTER VIII.

Copyright, 1916, Star Co.

IT took Myra Webb the best part of four days to write and rewrite the article she began on Monday morning. Yet it was but a short paper. Then she sent it to a certain typist and had it copied. On Saturday afternoon she mailed it, with stamps for its return in case it did not suit the editor to whom she addressed it.

At the end of another week it came back to her with a printed slip stating that it was not suited to the needs of the magazine to which it had been sent.

She should have been prepared for this, the would-be author told herself. Had she not heard of hundreds of writers who had had the same experience? It was a score of years since she had attempted to write for publication. She had probably lost some of her knack with her pen. She hoped all those other writers were not in as much need of money as was she.

She had not been idle, however, during the days after her first literary effort had been completed. She had begun to write a short story—one she thought would interest the women readers of a household magazine.

She had found Lizzie's interruptions disconcerting while writing her article, but once launched upon her story, she found them almost unbearable. She had fancied that she possessed a fair amount of self-control, but when, as she was deep in the experiences of her imaginary heroine, the maid came to her on some trifling matter, Myra was shocked at her own sudden impatience.

"I must be left undisturbed," she exclaimed when the girl told her that she had "clean forgotten" to mention that they were "out of sugar."

MYRA EXPLAINS TO THE GIRL

When the maid had withdrawn, closing the door after her, Myra sat long, gazing into space. Her joy in her story was gone. What she had hoped was inspiration had died a violent death. What could she do? Did all women writers go through this kind of thing? She had the uncomfortable conviction that she had wounded her employe's sensibilities. At last, exasperated at herself, she arose and went out into the kitchen. She must settle this matter, or she would not be able to concentrate her thoughts upon her work.

It was as she feared. Lizzie had been crying.

"What's the matter?" Myra asked.

The tears rushed again to the girl's eyes. "Please, ma'am," she whimpered, "my feelin's is hurt."

"What about?" she demanded, with portentous calmness.

"Well, ma'am, you spoke to me very short just now. In my last place the lady always wanted me to tell her as soon as I remembered anything I'd forgot."

"Perhaps," Myra suggested, "that lady did not have to write as I have to do."

"Indade she did, ma'am. Many's the letter I've took out to the corner and mailed for her. Yet she never minded my speakin' to her when she was writin'."

"But I am not writing letters," Myra tried to explain. "I am writing for the papers and magazines."

"And are you, ma'am?" Lizzie stared at her, wide-eyed. "And is it you that writes all them pieces in the evenin' paper that Mr. Webb brings home?"

"No," Myra said, unable to conceal the smile this question produced. "Not those pieces." Then a happy thought came to her. "I don't write any of those," she said, "because I don't have time. The people who do that kind of work have offices where they do nothing else.

"Perhaps if I had a place like that, where I would not be disturbed, I, too, might have what you call 'pieces' in the papers, or, at least, in the magazines. And, Lizzie, you can help me to get them done by keeping things as quiet as possible for me while I am at my desk."

"Sure, ma'am, I will," the good-natured creature promised, her resentment forgotten in the sudden sense of her own importance. "And will you have your name fast to them in the paper?"

"Perhaps," Myra replied.

THE STORY COMES BACK

The next morning she resumed her task and the story went better than she had feared. She wrote it with almost feverish haste. It was finished but not revised or copied, by Saturday noon. And that afternoon her first article came back to her.

She would not be discouraged, she resolved. Grace, seeing the long envelope on her mother's desk, asked practically if "something had been rejected already."

"Why not take your stuff in person to various periodicals?" the girl queried. "A man who does a good bit of writing told me once that that was the best way to get things accepted."

"Oh, I don't feel as if I could do that?" Myra Webb said with a gasp. "I should feel as if I were a beggar or a peddler."

At which foolish remark Grace shrugged her shapely shoulders and went on into her own room.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

TRY TO PERSUADE THEM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Some time ago I met a young man three years my senior, and we have learned to love each other dearly. His people, however, object to our union, saying that we could not be happy together because I am a widow and the mother of a little girl three years old.

I am twenty-nine years old and considered good looking, but his parents insist that he marry a younger girl than I. Do you think they are doing right?

A. B.

THE young man's parents are not fair to condemn you merely because of your age and because you are a widow with a child. However, unless they become reconciled to your union with their son I am afraid your marriage will not be successful. Be patient and see if you cannot convince them that there is no real objection to this marriage.

DON'T JUDGE HASTILY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been keeping company with a young man for a year. He is twenty-one and I will be eighteen in June. Now I know this young man loves me dearly, and I also care for him, but my mother objects, because his father drinks and treats his mother very bad, and my mother says like father like son. Now, the young man says he has seen enough of such a life, and he said he would never be like his father, and he treats me splendid now. He can't do enough for me. He is very jealous, though, and if I look at any one he gets mad. Now people all tell me I would not be happy if I married him, as he will treat me as his father treats his mother.

R.

IT is not fair to this young man to conclude offhand that he is going to be like his father. If he shows every sign of honesty and kindness perhaps in truth he will profit by the sad example he has seen before him. You are both young, and can well afford to wait until he has proven his worthiness to your mother.

A METHOD OF FRIGHTENING HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am seventeen years old and am employed as a stenographer in an office where there is only a gentleman and myself.

Several times during my work I have been interrupted by my employer, who always wants to show his appreciation of my work by kissing me.

Do you think I should give up my position, as I have reminded him many times that he is a married man and I am only there to do his work, and not socially? He is on good terms with my people, who think he treats me with the greatest respect.

C. B.

TELL this man that unless he ceases annoying you you will be compelled to leave his employ and to explain to your family exactly why you did it. This will probably be quite a strong enough argument to make him understand that you are quite in earnest in your wish to preserve your dignity.

CAN YOU TRUST HIM?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going out with a young man for about two years. During this time he was my sincere friend. Last week he told me that he was engaged, but did not love the young lady to whom his mother forced him to become engaged. He told me that he loved me and if I promised to marry him he would break his engagement with the young lady whom he did not love. I really love him.

B. H.

IF this young man were sincere in his friendship for you, he had no right to devote himself to you at the time that he was permitting himself to be, as he puts it, "forced" into an engagement with another girl. I'm afraid he is going to make, not one, but both of you unhappy. If he will honorably explain the situation to his mother, to the other girl and to your people, perhaps it will be all right for you to risk an engagement with him. But assure yourself of his loyalty before you permit your affections to go any deeper.

DON'T BE A CAD

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man married just about a year. I cannot love my wife, because I was married against my will. You can imagine my state of affairs, living with a woman that I never loved before and do not love now. This marriage separated me and my sweetheart. It was my parents' will, and, being an obedient son, I obeyed them. I am brokenhearted, and so is my sweetheart. What shall I do? I can not leave my wife and marry the other girl, my former sweetheart. We are very much in love, and seeing each other every day makes my lot more painful. I must leave my wife and go to my first love.

B. R. E.

YOU are certainly a weakling to have married, as you say, against your will. Now if you have one spark of manhood or a grain of affection for the other girl leave her alone. Do not see her, but give her a chance to get over the affair and make something of her life.

CALOX

The Oxygen Tooth Powder

Uses oxygen to kill germs, save your teeth, whiten your teeth and cleanse your mouth. Say "Calox" to the druggist.

TODAY'S BEAUTY TALK

You can make a delightful shampoo with very little effort and for a very trifling cost if you get from your druggist a package of canthrox and dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. Your shampoo is now ready. Just pour a little at a time on the scalp and rub briskly. This creates an abundance of thick, white lather that thoroughly dissolves and removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt. After rinsing, the hair dries quickly, with a fluffiness that makes it seem heavier than it is, and takes on a rich luster and a softness that make arranging it a pleasure.—Advertisement.

It's the Wives Who Run the Ananias Club

By DOROTHY DIX

EVER since the Garden of Eden scandal, when our First Father got involved in the pippin incident and wriggled out of it by laying it on a woman, men have walked in Adam's footsteps and put the blame of all their shortcomings on women's shoulders.

There is, however, one sin of which most husbands are guilty now and then, if not habitually, that they have a right to lay at their wives' doors. This is the sin of lying.

Decent men, as a rule, abhor lying. They seldom lie to each other. But they almost invariably lie to women, and the reason of this is because the average woman is so constituted that she cannot stand the truth. She prefers that a man lie to her even when she knows that he is lying.

Especially it is wives who make Ananiases of their husbands. The man, if he followed his own inclinations, would far rather be Truthful James.

THE MAN'S PREFERENCE

It degrades him in his own sight, and makes him feel like a sneak thief when he has to tell his wife tarradiddles, but it's the fairy story or a fight with her, so he follows the line of least resistance and qualifies as a fiction monger. For well he knows the things that his Maria would say were she presented with a bald statement of facts.

What man, for instance, would dare to tell his wife the truth about having lost money in a poker game, or having dropped it in a little flier that he took on State street, when she had warned him against speculation?

What man would have the nerve to tell his wife the truth about why he didn't come home to dinner, and say that it was because he had had a nerve racking day in business, and felt that he would go raving mad if he had the children's noise at home added to it?

What man would be brave enough to tell his wife that when she went off for a summer vacation alone it was a real vacation for him, because it let him get out of the monotonous round of too much domesticity?

GLIB ROMANCES

Not one. On the contrary, Friend Husband glibly romances along about out of town customers, or important cases, or extra work, and wife accepts the ancient and moss grown falsehood peacefully and calmly, and thus not only puts a premium on lying, but actually inveigles her husband into deceiving her.

If men deceive their wives, it is generally the wife's fault, because the average woman makes it impossible for any husband who isn't an Iron Cross hero to tell her the truth. A man who, when he takes a drink, tells his wife instead of eating cloves to hide it, or who dares admit at home that he deliberately asked a woman friend to lunch instead of prevaricating about how he accidently ran across her in a restaurant, can furnish a certificate of domestic felicity strong enough to draw money on at the bank.

It's mostly the wives who nominate their husbands for membership in the Ananias Club.

FRECKLES

March Brings Out Unsightly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

The woman with tender skin dreads March because it is likely to cover her face with ugly freckles. No matter how thick her veil, the sun and winds have a strong tendency to make her freckle.

Fortunately for her peace of mind the prescription, othine — double strength, makes it possible for even those most susceptible to freckles to keep their skin clear and white. No matter how stubborn a case of freckles you have, the double strength othine should remove them.

Get an ounce from your druggist and banish the freckles. Money back if it fails.—Advertisement.

EXPERTS URGE PRICE CURB ON GASOLINE

The cost of gasoline will reach a prohibitive point unless legislation, increased production and the use of lower grade fuels do not become actualities, according to experts.

These experts have told the AMERICAN that it is time the automobile industry, not only the manufacturers, but the dealers, the garage men, the clubs and the individual owners investigate this matter most seriously with a view to changing present conditions, either by new designs or legislation or both, if such seems within their power.

Dr. F. W. Rittman of the United States Bureau of Mines in Washington predicts that gasoline may reach forty cents a gallon, but believes that thereafter the price will gradually go down again and ultimately the problem will be worked out.

He says the Bureau of Mines is ready to co-operate in any investigation, and called attention to the fact that the bureau began such an inquiry four months ago.

E. S. Foljambe, manager of the Chilton Company, has suggested legislation to prevent increased exportations of gasoline at high prices, the increase of production of gasoline from crude oil by improved methods, the designing of smaller engines that will be more economical.

? Hug Is Worth? $2,000, Says Girl $1, Says the Jury

Hartford, Ct., March 17.—How much is a hug worth?

This question comes up as a result of Mrs. Mary Vallerand's suit in the Superior Court here, in which she alleged she had been hugged by Julius Steinberg, collector for a commission house. Mrs. Vallerand lives on York street, this city.

Mrs. Vallerand sued for $2,000 damages for the hugging.

The jury which heard the case returned a verdict of $1 for her.

But Judge Bennett, who presided at the trial, refused to accept the verdict, told the jury that, if Mrs. Vallerand was "entitled to a verdict, she was entitled to justice," and thereupon the judge sent the jury back to their room.

Note.—The question is still to be answered, for the jury couldn't agree, and the case must now be tried at the next term of court.

MOVEMENT FOR BROOKLINE SUBWAY

As a result of the death of Mary Hartigan on the Boston & Albany crossing at the Brookline Station last week, a petition is being circulated throughout Brookline by John Fleming that a subway be constructed under the tracks where the fatality occurred. He will present the petition at the next town meeting.

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular by noon. The New York market was not as strong this morning as it was yesterday, nor so active. Many traders believe the advance has gone far enough to warrant a reaction. Railroads improved during the forenoon, but not all retained gains. A recessional tendency was apparent toward the end of the first. Prices were then on the lowest level. There was profit taking on an extensive scale, particularly by western interests. There was a rally in the second hour.

Gains in New York at 12 o'clock included American Sugar 2¼, Beet Sugar 1¼, American Zinc 1⅜, Atchison ⅛, Baltimore & Ohio ⅛, Canadian Pacific ⅞, Chesapeake & Ohio 2, N. Y. Central ¾, Reading ¾, Baldwin 1¼, Texas Co. 1, Marine preferred certificates 2⅝, and Great Northern Ore 1.

Among declines were Southern Pacific ⅛, Utah Copper ⅛, Chino ¼, Mexican Petroleum ⅛, American Smelting ⅞, American Can ⅝, Anaconda ⅛, Car & Foundry ¼, American Locomotive ⅜, Colorado Fuel ⅝, Crucible 1⅛, Studebaker ⅝, Westinghouse ⅞. Goodrich 1 and New York Air Brake 1⅝. Union Pacific and U. S. Steel were unchanged.

Gains in Boston included: American Zinc 1¼, Allouez ½, New Haven ¼, United Fruit ⅜, United Shoe 1, Gulf common 1⅜, and preferred 1¼.

Among declines were: Alaska Gold ⅛, Calumet & Arizona ½, Granby 1¼, and North Butte ¾.

MOST STOCKS BEGAN STRONG.

Stocks were strong in New York at the opening as a rule, but a few began at a decline and a number were unchanged. Gains did not average large. Among the strongest issues were Beet Sugar, Marine preferred certificates, Industrial Alcohol, United Fruit and Pressed Steel Car. They all began at a point or more higher. Crucible Steel started 1⅝ off, but quickly recovered and was soon showing a fractional gain. U. S. Steel opened ⅛ higher. American Zinc became active and advanced soon after trading got under way. The bulk of the business was in war industrials. Early trading was of good volume. There had been no change in sentiment or conditions governing the market over night. Reports of a German reverse at Verdun were encouraging to bulls. Commission house attendance was large. The upturn this week is said to have been initiated by some large interests and the public is showing an inclination to follow.

The U. S. Steel Corporation reports for 1915 a surplus net income of $44,260,374, compared with a deficit of $16,971,984 for 1914. The 1915 surplus was equivalent to 9.97 per cent. earned on common stock. The company earned 6.52 on the same stock the year before.

AMERICAN ZINC STRONG.

American Zinc was the feature of the Boston market at the start and afterwards. It was active and strong. So was U. S. Smelting and Gulf common. Local trading was narrow for a few minutes and not of much volume. The tone was strong, however.

Recent stormy weather has so accumulated freight in New York to such an extent that the New Haven road put an embargo on freight acceptance at stations on its line for delivery at Pier 39, East River, and in connection with the New England Steamship Company via Sound ports. The embargo goes into effect at midnight, March 18, and will continue for the briefest possible time. Freight accumulations equal 2,900 carloads.

There is no change of consequence in the copper metal market. Tin is quiet, with an easier tendency, while lead and spelter are strong. On the London Metal Exchange spot copper was up £1 10s., futures 10s., and electrolytic was unchanged. Spot tin advanced 10s., futures £1 and Straits £1. Spot lead was 10s. and futures 7s. 6d. higher. Spot spelter up £1 at £93; futures were unchanged at £80.

COTTON SEED REPORT.

The government Census Bureau at Washington issued a special report today, showing 4,132,466 tons of cotton seed were crushed in 1915, as against 5,779,665 tons for 1914, while 880,780 bales of linters were obtained from the crop of 1915 as against 856,900 for 1914. The figures for 1915 include 503,698 tons of seed, estimated to be crushed, and 121,606 bales of linters to be obtained after the date of the March canvass.

UNITED FRUIT COMPANY

DIVIDEND NO. 67

A quarterly dividend of two per cent (two dollars per share) on the capital stock of this Company has been declared, payable on April 15th, 1916, at the office of the Company, 131 State Street, Boston, Mass., to stockholders of record at the close of business on March 24th, 1916. The said dividend is not payable on shares subscribed for under the terms of the company's circular letter to stockholders dated January 21st, 1916.

JOHN W. DAMON, Assistant Treasurer.

INDUSTRIALS ATTRACT PUBLIC

By BOERSIANER.

Though the massive short-term market followers took profits, though European reports and marine rumors were more or less disturbing, though the rails were relatively neglected, the session ended in higher prices.

Quotations would have been still higher had the campaigners cared to press their advantage. They prudently held the movement in leash whenever it displayed a runaway propensity; a trait of restraint that argues well for the campaign's stability.

Save in such special and essentially mercurial issues as Crucible Steel and Bethlehem—which are uncontrollable—stocks were soberly conducted. The phase that might challenge criticism was the spotty character of the trading in railway stocks, compared with the all-inclusive activity of the industrials.

The predilection of the speculative public for the industrials was obvious, and those stocks which are popularly supposed to be under pool operations were especially favored, regardless of the extra hazard involved.

Curbstone oracles have proclaimed since Monday that the short interest is "practically eliminated, excepting in steel." The unusual efforts made in the closing hour to unsettle the market suggests the contrary.

Much was made of the reported attempt to torpedo the Patria. To deepen the note, a rumor was circulated that a French steamship had been actually torpedoed. In this connection the fate of the Dutch liner Tubantia came into play. That a diplomatic break between Rumania and Bulgaria had occurred was willingly believed.

These adverse notes no doubt increased the realizing in the last hour, but later as well as early in the day the undertone remained strong. Optimistic sentiment was unimpaired. Investment orders were undiminished.

The steadiest of stocks were the coppers. While there were no conspicuous runs here the recession in the final hour had little effect on this group. There was some discussion of the exports of the metal in the fortnight ended March 1, which showed a decrease in comparison with the two weeks to February 15.

The Day That a Splendid Race Honors a Splendid Man

Copyright, Star Company

THIS is the day when a great and splendid race honors a great and splendid man, St. Patrick.

Of this militant missionary who brought religion into Ireland it has been well said: "He found no Christians, and left no heathen."

St. Patrick did a great deal for the Celtic people, who have since done a great deal for the world.

Today wherever there are progress and civilization there are Irishmen, working, directing, planning — the bosses and the builders of the railroads and the bridges and the subways and the skyscrapers and the big enterprises of a big world.

Wherever there is honest, courageous fighting there are Irishmen, cool, daring, indomitable, always fighting honorably, but fighting to win.

Wellington and Roberts, England's biggest fighting men in two periods of trouble, were Irishmen.

Admiral Beatty and General Sir Bryan Mahon are Irishmen.

And several hundred thousand Irishmen, forgetting for a time the oppression they have suffered under English rule, are fighting for England in the field. And England has at last come to understand that this valiant race is well worthy of a larger measure of home rule than she has yet given it.

The Irishman in America has shown what can be done by a man freed from oppression. In business, in politics, in all great enterprises, they are in the foremost places. They supply the best executive brains for the operation of railroads, the best eloquence on the platform and in the United States Senate.

Only a great man—a very great man—could have won the love and veneration of such a race as this. Today the pioneer missionary who preached in the open air is honored by great cathedrals and splendid churches bearing his name.

And a great and militant race lays aside all other affairs and makes a holiday that his memory shall be kept as green as the beautiful island where he labored.

The Public Service Board Should Give Heed to Mr. Bauer's Judgment

IN the AMERICAN published Monday was a letter from Mr. Ralph S. Bauer, in which Mr. Bauer charges that the Bay State Street Railway is about to purchase several hundred new cars, too long for the light traffic service and too short for heavy traffic service. In other words, Mr. Bauer intimates that these cars are uneconomical in all respects.

Mr. Bauer's judgment is entitled to great consideration in the controversy which the people of the district served by the Bay State are having with that street railway concerning a six-cent fare.

Mr. Bauer is president of the Lynn Board of Trade. He has been for years a prominent and fearless citizen of Lynn. He has spent a very large sum of his own money in this contest, in which there can be no advantage to him personally except the satisfaction of duty done.

He has given a great deal more of his time than any other unofficial person because to him was assigned the laboring oar in this contest against the demanded increase of carfare. His ability as a business man, his assiduity in this controversy, and the emphasis with which he gives his opinion on this question of the purchase of new cars, leads us to suggest to the Public Service Commission that it give careful consideration to Mr. Bauer's statement.

It is charged against the Bay State that it has not been economically managed. The truth of this charge is a very important issue in the question of increased carfares. The Bay State is not entitled to any assistance to fill in any gap left by unwise and uneconomical management. The absence of trailer cars and of cars with sufficient speed at the different points on the railway requiring speed have been urged with great force as evidence of poor management.

Post-mortem investigations are helpful, but an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure, and if the Public Service Commission can anticipate such mistakes as Mr. Bauer claims the Bay State is about to make and can forestall them, it will prevent many such unfortunate situations as the Bay State Street Railway now finds itself confronting.

Achievement

TRUST in thine own untried capacity
As thou wouldst trust in God Himself. Thy soul
Is but an emanation from the Whole.
Thou dost not dream what forces lie in thee,
Vast and unfathomed as the mighty sea
Thy silent mind o'er diamond caves may roll
Go seek them, and let Pilot Will control
Those passions which thy favoring winds may be
No man can place a limit on thy strength.
Such triumphs as no mortal ever gained
May yet be thine, if thou wilt but believe
In thy Creator and thyself. At length
Some feet must tread all heights now unattained.
Why not thine own? Press on, achieve, achieve!

The Greatest Thing That Caesar Did

It Was Not Conquering Gaul and Beating Pompey, but It Was Taking the Calendar Out of the Grip of Superstition and Putting It On a Scientific Basis

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Kindly explain the meaning of a Julian year. Does it consist of 365¼ days, and during what period was it used?"—E. P. B.

THE Julian year is a period of 365¼ days, which was adopted by order of Julius Caesar upon advice of the astronomer Sosigenes to represent the true length of the year.

Before Caesar's time the Roman calendar was in great confusion, largely because the priests insisted upon reckoning time by the moon, and upon trying to adjust the months, measured by the motions of the moon, to the year, measured by the apparent motion of the sun. But the two systems could not be geared together.

The seasons were thrown into confusion to satisfy the demands of superstition, and whole months were arbitrarily inserted into, or dropped out of, different years in a vain effort to make inconsistent things jibe. Then came Julius Caesar, one of the greatest exercisers of common sense that the world has ever seen, and brought order out of confusion.

Moon Thrown Out of Court as Disturber and Sun Given Sole Attention

After having the astronomers clearly explain the sources of the trouble to him, he commanded, to begin with, that the moon should be thrown out of court as a common disturber, and that the length of the year should henceforth be reckoned solely by the apparent annual revolution of the sun, which, as we know, is a result of the real revolution of the earth around the sun as a centre of motion.

The astronomers already knew that this period was about 365¼ days, and Caesar decreed that that should be taken as the basis of a new calendar.

To avoid the inconvenience of using a fraction of a day he fixed 365 days as the length of ordinary years, adding one day to every fourth year, and thus making that year 366 days, to strike a balance. This was the origin of "leap year." Then he swung the whole year round so that it should begin on the 1st of January instead of in March, as had been the custom theretofore.

He also arranged the length and order of the months, although some of his successors also took a hand in this. The number of the months was twelve, but they were divorced from the incompatible moon, which was left to rove romantically among them, as she is doing still today. In shifting the year backward, so that the beginning of Spring might fall in March, when the flowers come forth, Caesar had to insert two temporary months, between November and December, in the first year of his calendar, and that produced, for the time being, confusion and grumbling, but the man "who did bestride the little world like a colossus" paid no attention to the grumblers.

But now Caesar did something which betrayed the fact that after all he was only a man, with some of the common human weaknesses; he seized upon the month which had been called Quintilis (the fifth when March was the first) as a perpetual memorial of himself and ordered that its name should be July, from Julius.

And just as when one boy takes a slide another immediately follows in his track, so Julius' successor, Augustus, considering what his uncle had done and believing himself to be an equally great man, determined to have a month also, and he took the next in order, Sextilis, and named it August. But, since July had thirty-one days and his month only thirty, Augustus filched a day from February and added it to August, so that his name should cover as broad a space on the year's face as did that of the man who had founded his empire.

So, when we wonder how February came to be so short that even in leap year she cannot attain the full stature of her sisters we read the explanation in the vanity of a Roman emperor.

Adjustment Made by Pope Gregory in 1582 Still Serves World Today

The Julian reform of the calendar embodied a slight error. The true length of the year is not 365¼ days, or 365 days 6 hours, but it is 365 days 5 hours 48 minutes and 45½ seconds, so that the Julian year was 11 minutes 14½ seconds too long. In 1582, which was 1,627 years after Caesar had reformed the calendar, the vernal equinox, marking the beginning of the astronomical Spring, had fallen back, on the calendar, ten whole days. Then a pope, Gregory XIII., took the matter in hand and, with the advice of the astronomer Clavius, made a new adjustment, which serves us yet today.

He dropped ten days out of the year 1582, and, to avoid another similar disjointment, ordered that henceforth leap year should be omitted in every century year which is not divisible by 400. Thus 1700, 1800 and 1900 were not leap years, but 2000 will be a leap year. This change of the rule will suffice to keep the calendar from drifting more than one day astray in the course of 3,000 years to come. But this is only a modification of Caesar's system, and the Julian year, 365¼ days, is still in common use.

In astronomy, for historical purposes, the Julian year is always used in accordance with a system invented by Joseph Scaliger in 1582, which starts from January 1, 4713 B. C. By this reckoning the year 1916 is the Julian year 6629.

The Aristocracy of the Bath

PART TWO.

ONE of the greatest advantages of the daily bath, whether tub, shower or splash-from-a-bowl, is that it makes you take a good look at yourself and the inside of your underwear at least once, or usually twice, a day. It is astonishing how long one can wear a suit of underwear with comfort. "With perfect impurity," as Mrs. Partington said, so long as you don't take it off! And it is equally astonishing how long and constantly many people will wear an undergarment day and night unless they have the bath habit. The chief virtue of baths is washing off your underwear.

Not many are in the case of an old farmer who came back furious to a colleague of mine, in Illinois, denouncing the proprietors of a medicinal bath establishment, to which the doctor had sent him, because they had stolen his shirt! The doctor assured him that he must have been mistaken, but he was inconsolable, the shirt was gone when he came back to his dressing room, some attendant must have taken it.

A month later the old man hailed him on the street. "Oh, doctor," he wheezed, "I found dot shirt! I went back yesterday to take another bath, and ven I undressed dere it was under my undershirt. I'd vorgot and put it on first before!"

This finding your undershirt every day may seem a trifle, but it involves absolute protection against two of the deadliest pestilences that ever swept away humanity, the true plague (Black Death) and typhus fever. One is carried by fleas and the other by lice, and a clean skin and clean underwear are a wall of iron against both these vermin.

Besides all other skin parasites, the seven-year itch (scabies), ringworm, eczema, psoriasis, tetter, scab flourish on unwashed, seldom seen skins and the cat can find no foothold on clean, well-lighted and ventilated ones.

Nothing lets in the light and air and discourages bugs and diseases of all sorts on the skin like a daily bath. Keep the skin healthy and clean and it will keep itself germ-proof, impervious as chilled steel to the attack of the fiercest bacteria. Neither fleas, lice, mites nor any lesser bugs can live or will stay long on a clean person.
